TORCH MURDER OF YOUNG GIRL STIRS GOTHAM

Unidentified Body Found in Park; Clothing and Shoes Hidden Two Miles Away.

IS THIRD FLAME DEATH IN YEAR

Police Admit Selves Baffled by Crime Discovered by Youth, Who Withheld Report.

New York, April 28.—(United News.)—The third "torch murder" in the metropolitan area within a year—that of an unidentified young girl—presented an aspect tonight as baffling to police as the two which have preceded it.

Joseph Selvey, a young steamfitter, was strolling through a wooded patch off a lonely road between Scarsdale and Ardsley yesterday when he suddenly halted before the charred body of a girl of 20 or 21, resting upon a pyre of underbrush.

The clothing had been burned away, and the face was beyond recognition. The murderer had wrapped the head in a towel soaked with kerosene to foil immediate identification. The only clue to be found near the body was a small piece of cretonne from the girl's dress, which had escaped the flames.

Choked to Death.

Selvey was so unnerved by the sight that he hurried home, went to his room and, without mentioning the discovery, stayed there until last night before he could bring himself to inform the police. It was with difficulty that they persuaded him to accompany them to the spot and point out the body.

Investigation revealed the girl had been rendered unconscious by a blow on the head with a blunt instrument, then choked to death, before a torch was applied to her oil-soaked clothing. A subsequent discovery indicated the body had been carried to the spot.

Two and a half miles away from the place where Selvey had stumbled upon the murdered girl a package containing a young woman's shoes and several other articles was found by a roadside. Detectives tried the shoes on the girl's feet and found they fitted perfectly. The contents of the package appeared to have been gathered up hurriedly.

Started to Elope.

This gave rise to a theory that the girl may have been starting to elope when she came to her death.

Police were unable tonight to link the mystery death with any report of an elopment or any case in which a girl of that age was missing. In the absence of stronger clues, the identification apparently rested on dental work.

Several persons, including Selvey, were questioned by Westchester county authorities last night, but all were later absolved. On the possibility that the slain girl might have been the victim of a sadistic degenerate, police issued orders for a round-up of all known subnormal persons in the vicinity of the crime.

NEBRASKA WOMAN DISLOCATES ARM IN BRIDGE GAME

Winside, Neb., April 28.—(United News.)—To the casual player, bridge may appear to be a harmless game, but Miss Ella Durham, a teacher living here, believes it is a strenuous sport. She is suffering from a dislocated arm—the result of playing bridge.

She was dealt an unusual hand. In expressing her surprise and pleasure, she waved her arms in the air and clapped her hands so vigorously that her right shoulder was dislocated.

School was closed the next day.

Atlanta To Aid Storm Stricken Georgia Sector

Mass Meeting To Be Held Today To Raise Funds for Relief of Tornado Victims.

CHECK IS SENT BY BIBLE CLASS

Homeless of South Georgia Bury Last of Dead As Rehabilitation Work Begins.

With one check already forwarded to the stricken area and a relief meeting called for this afternoon, Atlanta today will swing vigorously into the work of extending aid to the hundreds of Georgians left homeless by the tornadoes that last week swept the central and central-eastern portions of the state.

Atlantans who are former residents of Bulloch and Candler counties, the two hardest hit by the disaster, have been asked to meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the senate chamber at the capitol for the purpose of speedily raising a substantial sum of money to be forwarded to the official relief agencies at Metter, Statesboro and Register.

Adjutant-General Homer C. Parker, a former resident of that section, is heading the work here among the nearly 200 Atlantans who formerly lived in the communities disrupted by the storm. Those wishing to send contributions immediately may forward their checks to General Parker, at the capitol, or to Thomas C. Denmark, attorney, at 323 Healey building.

Sixty dollars for the relief fund was raised in a few minutes Sunday at the West End Baptist church when an appeal was made to the Berean class, taught by General Parker. After the money had been raised a check was forwarded to Walter E. McDougald, chairman of the Red Cross at Statesboro.

RELIEF WORK RUSHED AS DEAD ARE BURIED.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Along the devastated path of last Thursday's tornadoes which took a toll of 52 lives, approximately 800 injured and upward of 2,000 made homeless in southern Georgia and South Carolina, there was a moment's pause Sunday while funerals were held and the last of the dead were buried.

In several of the stricken communities, common rites were held for entire families wiped out by the twister. In cases where relatives of the dead were rendered destitute the counties bore the burial expense.

Meanwhile, relief and rehabilitation work went forward, and measures were taken to prevent disease infestation in the stricken areas. A Georgia state department of welfare workers arrived Sunday in Statesboro, relief center of the section where the tornadoes struck their hardest blow, and a health survey was being made.

A compilation of damage estimates made by rehabilitation organizations at various relief centers placed the total property destruction of the tornadoes near $1,000,000. This figure, however, did not include damage to growing crops and timber, which officials of counties affected said would run into many thousands of dollars.

Relief Director Arrives.

Word was received by the people of the storm zone that national organizations and authorities had begun planning legislation for relief, to be presented to congress.

"John W. Clarke, relief director from the national Red Cross headquarters at Washington, arrived in Statesboro Sunday, and took charge of relief work over the entire tornado-swept area. Miss Lucile A. Boylan, also of national Red Cross headquarters, arrived and assumed directorship of work in Bulloch and Candler counties, working under Mr. Clarke.

Colonel Fred W. Bugbee, commander of the eighth infantry at Fort Screven, Savannah, Ga., was ordered by forth corps area headquarters at Atlanta to inspect the tornado zone in the vicinity of Statesboro and to report on the situation.

The Mabie family, their automobile driven by Papa, a family friend, were en route to Burr Oak, Mich.

A. R. Williams, of Detroit, driver of the bus, which was Chicago-bound from Detroit, said the Mabie automobile approached his bus at high speed on the wrong side of the highway and on a curve.

Williams' story was substantiated by most of the 18 passengers on his bus.

Four in the Mabie car died instantly. Mrs. Mabie lived till she reached a hospital.

APRIL SHOWERS AGAIN PROGRAM FOR CITY TODAY

The cautious prophets at the Washington weather bureau Sunday night refused to risk any reputations on the uncertainties of April and forecast partly cloudy weather, with slowly rising temperatures and indicated that an occasional shower might be expected.

After a week of splendid behavior, for the benefit of opera-goers, April Sunday lapsed into the natural tradition and provided rain, in plentiful amounts. To be exact, to the extent of .66 inches. This being the first rainy Sabbath experienced here in some weeks it placed an unwelcome ban on practically all expeditions into the out-of-doors, only the most hopeless golf bugs braving the weather. The temperatures ranged between 74 and 58 degrees and probably will run a bit higher today.

FLORIDA LAWYER ABDUCTED, BEATEN, ROBBED AND ORDERED TO QUIT STATE BY TUESDAY

SENATE FIREWORKS ON FARM RELIEF DUE THIS WEEK

Administration Leaders Will Wage Hot Fight To Kill the Debenture Plan.

Washington, April 28.—(AP)—With a close vote in prospect, the senate will reach a decision this week on the disputed export debenture plan and possibly will pass some form of farm relief legislation.

Administration leaders are confident that they have enough support to defeat the debenture plan objected to by President Hoover and that they will be able to pass a measure similar to that already approved by the house.

If their plans are carried out, the farm bill will be in the hands of a senate and house conference by the end of the week with the expectation that another fortnight will see the legislation to serve as a groundwork for solving the agricultural problem, enacted into law.

The calculations of the republican leaders, however hinge entirely on the success of administration senators in blocking the adoption of the debenture plan. Should this provision, in spite of their careful checking of the senate membership, be written into the farm bill, none of them would hazard a guess as to the outcome of agricultural legislation.

The check-made of the senate membership by republican leaders professes to show that at least four democrats will decline to support the debenture plan. This would mean that the friends of the proposal must win over 13 republicans to muster the 48 votes needed to win, providing all of the senators vote. Republican leaders claim that this many republicans cannot be counted upon and also assert that five, and perhaps, democrats will be found in the group opposing the debenture section.

Little if any, dispute is looked for on any other provision of the senate bill which in general way is identical to the house bill. The senate bill provides for a farm board of 12 members rather than six as is proposed in the house bill, but leaders are confident that a compromise will be reached in conference whereby the board will be composed of probably 8 or 9 members.

Revolving Fund.

The senate bill also allocates the $500,000,000 revolving fund into specific sums for distribution in aiding co-operatives and stabilization corporations, whereas the house bill would leave the allotment of money to the board. However, there is a disposition among those interested in the legislation to believe that there would be no material difficulty in composing the differences in conference.

It is the opinion of Senator McNary, of Oregon, who as chairman of the agriculture committee has the senate farm bill in charge, that if the debenture section is eliminated, a farm bill can be sent to President Hoover by May 10. He said his aim was to get the legislation on the statute books as early as possible so as to give the farm board efficient time to organize and to make the legislation effective for this year's crops.

Advocates of the debenture plan planned to press first for the adoption of the Norris amendment, which would provide for a lowering of debenture rates when over-production is forecast.

Beautiful Backs, Not Faces

:: MONT PARNASSE PAINTERS EMBRACE REALISM ::

New Requisite for Models

Paris, April 28.—(United News.)—The day of the beautiful artist's model is past, according to leaders of the artist colony in Montparnasse, who hold there is far more character in rude ugliness.

"A girl model who has a pretty face has not much chance here now," declared the head of an employment agency for models in Montparnasse. "If she has a beautiful body it makes all the difference, but nevertheless in such cases painters prefer to pose the girl in the nude in such a way that they will not be forced to delineate the facial characteristics. Facial beauty in painting is considered effete."

This minor artistic revolution has had a sobering effect on the colorful throngs that nightly swarm among the cafes and bars of the Latin quarter. The characteristic beauty of the models of yesterday has given way to the less volatile model of Nordic extraction. Flaxen-haired Norwegian girls with broad brows and forceful chins or more mildly blonde Berliners and Viennese now swing by on the arms of their slouch-hatted, bearded artist friends.

With the passing of the beautiful model, realism has replaced idealism on the canvasses of Montparnasse. Brutal frankness pervades the studies now on view. Lines which might have been softly curving and represented a fleshy and each impurity of figure is eagerly seized upon and accentuated. This new trend is discernible in the innumerable, intimate and somewhat daring studies of women's back which clutter art stores and cafes.

In detail, also, the present nude figures spare very little. The young artist entrusted with the murals in the most exclusive dance club on the Champs Elysees decided to portray the magnificent boulevard whose name signifies "Elysian fields."

When the club opened its doors for the first time, the walls appeared to be woven of living naked women.

Parisians, who get used to almost anything, are now accustomed to the smiling pictures of three Eve-like ladies. But the more staid or timid of the tourists have been known to blush and confusedly bundle out their womenfolk, thinking perhaps there had been some mistake.

FREEDOM OF SEAS TOPIC AT GENEVA

British Labor Proposes No Blockades Except Entire World Against Aggressor Nation.

Geneva, April 28.—(AP)—Geneva was wondering tonight whether the next important step would not be an understanding concerning the freedom of the seas, now that an Anglo-American naval agreement is rosily anticipated. Apparently no delegation to the preliminary commission for a disarmament conference has a mandate to open its great problem here.

The instructions of American Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, for instance, seem to limit his activities to preparing as speedily as may be for an international conference for reduction of armaments and specially to concentrate on methods of reduction of naval strength.

Nevertheless the problem of freedom of the seas hovers over the deliberations and many delegations have done much private talking about it. One reason for this is that many publicists both in Europe and the United States have been debating the problem.

Blockade For Aggressors.

The chief immediate reason, however, was an announcement made here by British circles of the League of Nations, although not connected with the British disarmament delegation, that the labor party would enunciate decisive opinions on the subject. This party was described as holding to the league view, that seas can only be closed when nations by common action take blockade and punitive measures against a nation which has launched an aggressive war.

The labor reunciation of right of private war and private blockade and acceptance of the doctrine that the high seas should only be closed by international agreement for the enforcement of an international covenant, is virtually a restatement of the second of the "14 points" of Woodrow Wilson.

P. O. SITE BIDS EXAMINED TODAY

Inspectors Expected To Spend 30 Days Checking Offerings Before Selection Is Finally Made.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

Washington, April 28.—Treasury department officials were all set today to open sealed bids Monday on the various lots offered for sale by Atlanta property owners as possible sites for the new federal building authorized for the city. The bids will be opened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon in the Treasury building in keeping with specifications advertised in Atlanta papers during the past 30 days.

Expectations are that a number of sites will be submitted, since representatives of several property holders have been in Washington recently for conferences with officials over the situation.

Although the Central of Georgia railway has indicated opposition to selling its property near the Atlanta Terminal station, already tentatively approved by members of the federal building committee as a suitable site for the new structure, it is understood that officials of the company will put in a bid nevertheless.

State-Owned Property.

Among the other sites which have been suggested is state-owned property just west of the Spring street viaduct and immediately north of the Central of Georgia railway freight terminal. The site is the property of the Western and Atlantic railroad, which in turn is owned by the state of Georgia, and is under lease to the N., C. & St. L. railroad. The latter road, it is understood, will offer to sublet the site to the government.

While it has been pointed out that this site is conveniently located in relation to the Terminal station and the proposed new Union station, it is not believed likely that the government will seriously consider the site under the conditions contained in the railroad offer. The company's lease on the property is for a 40-year period only, thus making action by the Georgia legislature necessary before the government would be likely to consider the spot for the erection of an expensive building.

The authorization for the Atlanta building, which will house general activities of the federal government in the city, calls for an expenditure of $2,100,000, including the cost of a site. Of this fund the sum of $45,000 has already been appropriated for the commencement of operations. The remainder will be appropriated by congress as work progresses.

The specifications for a site call for a corner lot in the general vicinity of the Atlanta Terminal with a total square footage of approximately 105,000. The dimensions specified were approximately 300x350 feet, indicating that a building of some proportions will be decided on.

A third proposed site for the structure is bounded by Trinity avenue, Forsyth, Garnett and Spring streets. This tract, controlled by the Trust Company of Georgia, and offered by James M. Cooper, is said to be the largest single area under consideration.

Still another site will be offered by Walter B. Stewart, M. L. Thrower, J. L. McCord and C. H. Johnson. This land is south of Hunter street, east of Spring, west of Forsyth and extending to the property line of the buildings in this block fronting on Mitchell street.

The fifth suggested location is offered by the Fulton Properties company, and is bounded on the north by Alabama street, on the east by Forsyth, on the south by Hunter and on the west by the Spring street viaduct.

VICTIM DECLARES HE WILL DEPART; WITHHOLDS NAMES

St. Petersburg Attorney Dragged From Home as Wife Watches; Lookouts Prevent Pursuit.

HUGE MAN-HUNT IS ORGANIZED

James F. Bickers Returns To Tell of Beating and Robbery; Was Known As Reformer.

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 28.—(AP) James F. Bickers, prominent attorney, was abducted from in front of his home shortly after noon today by five men whom he says took him far into the country, stripped him, robbed him of $2,000, then whipped him severely with a knotted whip and ordered him to leave the city and the state.

Bickers, for whom a widespread search was conducted, was brought to a hospital by unidentified motorists whom he said he hailed after working free of bonds with which has abductors had bound him, and prevailed upon them to bring him to the city.

The attorney, who has been active in a campaign against lawlessness, said he did not know the identity of his assailants, but that if he did he would not reveal them. Bickers also announced his intention of leaving St. Petersburg and Florida by Tuesday night and of quitting the practice of law.

Says Mayor Threatened.

From his bed in the hospital the attorney told of being forced to enter a car in front of his home by five men armed with pistols who then put a sack over his head and drove out of the city. Bickers said he estimated they drove 100 miles before the car was brought to a halt and he was taken out and a noose placed about his neck.

Efforts to reason with his captors to release him, Bickers said, were futile, but the men reconsidered and then bound him to a log while they beat him with a knotted lash and left him with an admonition to quit this section.

The attorney told Mayor John N. Brown, who personally was directing a search for the attorney, when he appeared at the hospital that his abductors had threatened Brown and urged him to take every precaution.

Lookouts Stop Pursuit.

Bicker's abduction was witnessed by his wife who is confined to her bed because of illness. Mrs. Bickers said when her husband's automobile drew up beside the house, she looked out the window and saw him surrounded by five men armed with pistols, who forced him to enter the car and drove away.

She screamed and B. B. Chesney, former chief of police, who was waiting Bickers' return, dashed out of the house and to the corner, where he said a man, apparently a foreigner, met him with a pistol and ordered him to turn back.

The most intensive search ever conducted for a man in this section of the state was inaugurated immediately, 50 special officers being sworn in to assist police and sheriff's deputies to hunt for the attorney and his abductors. Three airplanes were chartered to do scout work, and Mayor Brown announced as many additional men as were needed would be sworn in to aid in the hunt.

Prosecuted Sheriff.

Bickers came here from Memphis, Tenn., where he had served as assistant attorney-general for Shelby county, and for several years has had a large practice.

He was employed last year to fight dog races at a kennel club here and succeeded in halting the races for a few days, but later they were resumed.

Bickers recently filed charges against Sheriff Gladstone Beattie with Governor Carlton in which he accused the officer of accepting bribes for protection of bootleggers, permitting gambling, misfeasance, malfeasance and nonfeasance in office.

Sheriff Beattie called at the hospital tonight and told Bickers that he would exert every effort to apprehend his abductors.

Many Characteristics of Man

BY SAM LOVE,
United News Staff Correspondent.

New York, April 28.—(United News.)—This old joke in the comic magazines—the one depicting Mrs. Suffragette with a moustache, masculine figure and a bass voice, complaining to her bridegroom that his biscuits were not as good as the kind father used to make—this joke is something less than 100 per cent funny in the light of modern medical beliefs.

Nature is imposing a startling slavery of psychical and physical disturbances on the "modern woman," Dr. Richard Horace Hoffman, a leading New York psychiatrist, has told the United News.

Dr. Hoffman, who outlined man's battles against his physical enemies throughout the centuries in the recently published book, "The Struggle for Health," carried his discussion beyond the pages of his work.

Moustaches Appear.

He pointed out the laws of compensation had already begun to exact an observable toll in bodily disturbances brought about by chemical changes in "freed" women of the business and workaday world.

Already, some of the more adaptable women are beginning to display "secondary sex indications," the psychiatrist has observed. These symptoms include hair on the upper lip; masculine deportment and changes in voice; alteration of the figure and adoption of the male point of view.

Following these are a long train of other changes—many of them ills which the masculine breadwinner takes as a matter of course. The premature development of wrinkles and appearance of face blemishes send thousands to the beauty specialists. Scrawny frames and physical disturbances such as heartburn, loss of appetite, tendency to hysteria and exhaustion nervous debility, digestional difficulties—these and a dozen more exactions of nature have been traced to the same source.

Cause Race Suicide.

"One day the so-called modern woman awakened to find that she could make as much money, if not more, than the man of her acquaintance. The dollar chase was on, as it was in the man's world. Immediately her psychological attitude toward men underwent a change. It had a new financial basis.

"Furthermore, in this new game she actually got out of the habit of marriage to some extent. Or she put off marriage. Particularly she put off child-birth, as many stastistics show. And all this time nature has been attempting to keep up with these changes. To equip the competitive woman for her battle, nature had to make some chemical changes. These are becoming more and more noticeable.

"Scores of the physical symptoms revealed to the psychiatrist are but reflections of the physical disturbances—faulty digestion, heartburn, underweight, nervous ailments, hysteria and the like. So too are what we call the secondary sex indications, which mar the feminine beauty and produce a new masculinized point of view."

EARLY ARREST SEEN FOR PEAVY'S SLAYER

Police Expect Quick Results From Clues Now Being Followed.

An early arrest of the slayer of Paul Peavy, 28, of Stone Mountain, who was killed late Saturday night at Courtland and Harris streets, is expected, according to Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole. Chief Poole stated Sunday night that he and his assistants were working on several clues which they believe will lead to the arrest of the slayer within the next day or two.

Robbery apparently was not the motive for the murder, for $7.50 was found in Peavy's pocketbook, with several valuable papers, police stated. Call Officers Bailey and Bell, who investigated were told that Peavy had been talking to three negroes who ran away after two shots had been fired.

Peavy's body was taken to Awtry & Lowndes funeral parlors, where an inquest will be conducted by Coroner Paul Donehoo. The time for the inquest has not been announced.

Mr. Peavy is survived by his mother, Mrs. John L. Peavy; six sisters, Mrs. J. McDaniel, Mrs. J. H. Butler, Mrs. G. W. Brand, Miss Vannie Peavy, Miss Norah Peavy and Miss Millie Peavy, and a brother, John M. Peavy.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Danish Cabinet.

Copenhagen, April 28.—(United News.)—A. M. Stauning, leader of the social democratic party, was attempting to form a new government today to succeed the cabinet of Premier Thomas Madsen-Nygdal, liberal, who resigned last week. The new government will support a drastic disarmament policy, on which it won last week's elections. King Christian asked Stauning Saturday to form a cabinet.

The settlement and development of Wenatchee Valley in the state of Washington form the theme of the Empire Builders' nationwide broadcast over WSB and the NBC System tonight, at 8:30 o'clock.

The Wenatchee Valley has long been famous for its miles of magnificent apple orchards. The program will include a dramatization of the voyage of the Astorians on their way to what became later the Port of Astoria at the mouth of the Columbia river.

The dramatic episodes will recount the history of these same Astorians pushing inland to settle the Wenatchee Valley; and how, through the instrumentality of James J. Hill, prosperity came to this entire area.

The drama of the building of Napoleon's coronation coach, which "The Man of Destiny" believed was to play an important part in his life, will be presented tonight by the General Motors Family Party, with Fisher Body as host, at 7:30 o'clock, over WSB and the NBC System. The basic idea of this dramatic radio sketch is that the true artisan gets as great a thrill in building a coach which will reflect the personality of its occupants as any artist experiences in creating a masterpiece on canvas or in stone.

So important did Napoleon regard the proper design and construction of his great coronation coach that he turned aside from affairs of state, from preparations for the event that was to make him the first emperor of the French—to see that it was built in time. Likewise he found in Henri, the master coach builder, a veteran of his early wars as well as the greatest coach builder in France.

Henri was an artist—a designer and builder who believed that every part of his product should be fitted together with the nicety and precision of the parts of a watch and that the result should not only fit the personality of the person using it, but the occasions for its use.

The story of Henri and Napoleon's coach has been dramatized by William Ford Manley and Henry Fisk Carlton and will be produced by Gerald Stopp and his players of the National Broadcasting Company. There will be incidental music, with introduction and finale appropriate to the drama presented by a concert orchestra and a mixed chorus.

Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit, regular star headliners of Robert Burns Panatelas, will present a popular duet from the 1927 Scandals as a feature of the program over the Columbia System tonight, at 8 o'clock.

"The Girl Is You and the Boy Is Me" was one of the most entertaining melodies of the 1927 Scandals and Miss Sanderson and Mr. Crumit will give it a particularly pleasing interpretation. They will contribute another duet entitled "Peace of Mind," while Miss Sanderson will sing "Let's Take a Ramble Through Honeymoon Lane," and Mr. Crumit will provide mirth with "If I Give Up the Saxophone, Will You Come Back to Me," Eddie Cantor's successful hit in the musical comedy, "Whoopee."

In addition, the Robert Burns orchestra will contribute such popular melodies as "Wedding of the Painted Doll," a tango entitled "Dallequita" and a special arrangement of Scotch airs.

POLICE ENDEAVOR TO LINK INSANE MAN IN MYSTERY.

North Stamford, Conn., April 28. (United News.)—The possibility that an insane sanitarium patient may have been involved in Connecticut's latest mystery murder was weighed by authorities tonight as they investigated the death of Gus Oleson, 52, employe in Stamford Hall sanitarium.

Oleson, whose body was found in a patch of woods a half mile from Stamford Hall yesterday, was the victim of an assailant who police believe was undoubtedly mentally unbalanced. Medical Examiner Crane said the man had been killed with a meat ax and the body frightfully mutilated. Investigators, however, could find few clues to the murderer's identity.

Permanent Peace Depends Upon Justice, Not Armies, Coolidge Writes Magazine

Says He Called Parley and Then Started Building Cruisers; Men, Not Guns, Give Strength.

Philadelphia, April 28.—(AP)—"Men will not long recognize the sword as the major source of authority," writes Calvin Coolidge in the May issue of Ladies' Home Journal.

"So long as there is evil in the world." The former president says, "armies and navies will be required for domestic and international police service, but peace will never be made permanent by fear alone. It must have a main foundation of justice and good will strong enough to satisfy the reason and conscience of humanity."

Mr. Coolidge's article discusses "The promotion of peace through limitation of armaments," and is the second of three on peace to appear in the publication.

Speaking of his part in the calling of the Geneva conference, Mr. Coolidge continues:

Calls Parley, Then Builds.

"Before recommending the last building program, I called the Geneva conference in order to give each nation full opportunity to make an agreement. I realized their great financial stress and was especially desirous that none of them could point an accusing finger at the United States and say that we were building a war fleet in competition with them and compelling them to enlarge their fleet and increase their burdens.

"Because they were unable to meet our proposals, that does not constitute any point at issue between them and us. We have all been sincerely striving to work out a world policy. Each of them is bound by the covenant of the league to establish such a policy. Our government has been at all times earnestly solicitous to cooperate to that end.

Men, Not Guns, Count.

"The time has gone by when any one nation is likely to be able to control the sea. To set up that claim would be only a fiction and to pursue it would be only a delusion. The question of parity partakes of the same nature. So much depends on the man behind the guns and the courage and skill with which they are commanded, that a seeming paper parity will never be decisive in any armed conflict.

"Our commerce and our commitments abroad are so large that they need a navy for their protection without much reference to the size of the navies of other countries. The same rule applies to others.

"The hope of gaining absolute security through armaments is another delusion. No nation ever could say that its army and navy make it perfectly secure. There are too many other people with armies and navies. More security will be found in a moderate force which menaces nobody than in a great force which menaces everybody."

NEW DYKE BREAK ON "BIG MUDDY;" NO MORE EXPECTED

Murphysboro, Ill., April 28.—(AP)—A new break in the levee of the Big Muddy river, a short distance from where it flows into the Mississippi, six miles south of Grand Tower, was reported today. The latest break is increasing the volume of water already flooding 24 square miles of the district through a break in the South Grand Tower levee system which started Saturday noon.

Thomas Dunn, Jackson county engineer, said today the Mississippi was carrying an "unusual bulge" of water past the Jackson county levees, but he did not anticipate further overflow unless the river stage is increased two or more feet. Dunn said a survey of the levees from Chester to Cairo had been made by Missouri Pacific railroad engineers and they reported the water was still two feet below the levee top at Preston, near Wolf Lake, the lowest dike in the section below the Big Muddy.

ANNE EMULATES FAMOUS FIANCE, WILL SAY NOTHING

Houston, Texas, April 28.—(AP)—Miss Anne Morrow, fiancee of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, used the famous flier's phraseology, in countering the inquiries of a girl reporter for the Houston Post-Dispatch here last night.

"I'm so sorry, but I have nothing to say," the daughter of the American ambassador to Mexico, replied when the reporter cornered her at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Dillingham. Mrs. Dillingham is a cousin of Miss Morrow's mother.

"But Miss Morrow," the reporter said, "the public is looking to you just as it is looks to Colonel Lindbergh. It demands some sort of message."

Miss Elizabeth Morrow put in a word at this point, declaring:

"I believe that one of the things which helped Colonel Lindbergh to his fame was his silence on personal affairs. He said nothing of himself, reserving his comment for aviation—speaking only of how he might best serve its advancement and discussing its future."

Queries concerning Miss Morrow's coming marriage with the Lone Eagle likewise went unanswered. However Mr. Dillingham said:

"I don't think Anne herself knows when she will be married. However, there is one thing certain—it will, in all probablity, be a very quiet affair. That's the reason they are saying nothing—they don't want all the worry of publicity that it will bring. There would be photographers, and a thousand and one other things to think about. Anne would be hounded to death—and she is only 20, you know."

FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD TODAY FOR MRS. Z. T. DOBBS

Funeral services for Mrs. Z. T. Dobbs, well known Atlanta woman, who died late Saturday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. E. McCord, 37 Camden road, will be held this morning at 11 o'clock from the chapel of Barclay & Brandon Company. The Rev. L. O. Bricker, pastor of the Peachtree Christian church will officiate and interment will follow at 2 o'clock in the Pleasant Grove cemetery, at Villa Rica, Ga.

Mrs. Dobbs was the widow of the late Z. T. Dobbs, founder and president for many years of the Dobbs & Wey Company. She was a charter member of the Jackson Hill Baptist church and after the big Atlanta fire in May, 1917, Mrs. Dobbs became connected with the First Baptist church and worked faithfully in that membership until she suffered a stroke of paralysis two years ago.

Mrs. Dobbs was the mother of James K. Dobbs, well known Atlantan and radio editor of the Atlanta Journal and John H. Dobbs. She is also survived by five grandchildren, John McCord, Beverly G. Dobbs, Mary Louise Dobbs and James K. Dobbs, Jr., all of Atlanta, and Coleman Hodge, of Elko, Ga.; two sisters, Mrs. Will Norwood, of Greenville, S. C., and Mrs. W. S. Lillingsworth, of Oakland, Cal.

STOUT AIRLINES BOUGHT BY NEW PLANE COMBINE

New York, April 28.—(AP)—The Stout Airlines, Inc., of Detroit, have been acquired by the United Aircraft & Transport Corporation, R. B. Rentschler, president of the later concern, announced today.

Rentschler said this was a step further in the plans of his company to develop eventually a transcontinental passenger air service.

The Stout Airlines have been operating on regular schedules between Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago. The company was developed by William B. Stout, pioneer engineer who first designed the all-metal type of plane.

COOKING SCHOOL OPENS TUESDAY

Miss DeBoth has staged her exposition in home economics and cooking is to the effect that she has caught and held the interest of her hearers and that attendance has grown steadily as the school progressed.

Miss DeBoth treats her subjects in a manner befitting their importance, for, as she points out, there can be no more vital department of activity in the nation than that which affects and regulates the homes of its citizens. She is a splendid speaker as well as a talented and deeply-versed expert in all culinary and home-making arts, and injects into her lectures a great deal of the whimsically humorous flavor of woman's routine life in the home.

Ideal Location.

The Erlanger theater is an ideal place in which to hold the school. In the atmosphere of restfulness and beauty for which the beautiful playhouse is noted, a plentiful supply of comfortable seats will be provided for all women who attend and lighting effects will be so arranged as to throw into vivid relief every stage of the demonstration accompanying each of Miss DeBoth's lectures.

There will be no charge of any kind in connection with the exposition, and the feminine public of Atlanta is cordially invited as guests of The Constitution and enjoy this educational exposition of the new and approved methods of maintaining the efficient home of 1929.

MANY CONTRADICTIONS IN VANDERBURG TRIAL

Youth, Charged With Death of Five, Proves Enigma to Court.

Gastonia, N. C., April 28.—(AP)—A herculean task faces the jury trying the case of Jacob Vanderburg, Gaston county farm boy, as his trial for the alleged murder of five members of his family nears an end.

It has a mass of baffling, contradictory evidence to consider in determining the 17-year-old boy's guilt or innocence. It has puzzling facts that seem to dove-tail into no others and it has others that seem to fit perfectly until placed side by side with apparently rock bound testimony and then the whole becomes jumbled.

Take Jacob's story as told by half a dozen witness. They say the boy told them of being awakened by the smoke, gettting his gun and his money and feeling his uncertain way to his mother's bed room. He felt her head, they say, and discovered it wet. He knew then she was dead. So picking up his sister's hat box, his father's Sunday suit and odd trinkets, he left the house.

The house was filled with smoke at the time, yet when the bodies were discovered after the fire, they were all in the ruins of the kitchen and not in the bedroom. Witnesses who said they had questioned Jacob on this point told how he replied that he guessed the person who killed them moved their bodies to the kitchen.

Neighbors testify the boy came to their home and asked for assistance in moving the automobile. Asked about the father, mother, two sisters and a brother, the boy replied they had been murdered.

The matter of blood on the boy's hat, shoes and shirt is under dispute. One physician testified he examined a clot on the hat and found it to be human blood. Five other physicians say in their opinion no such analysis could have been made. The blood-stained hand axe was pretty definitely taken out of the list of incriminating objects by defense witnesses Saturday who said they had used it after the tragedy.

Defense attorneys say they have important witnesses yet to go on the stand. These witnesses, who include Jacob Vanderburg himself, may clear the moot points.

TO ASK HOOVER'S OPINION ON BOOK DECLARED OBSCENE

New York, April 28.—(AP)—Roger Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, announced today that a copy of "The Sex Side of Life," by Mary Ware Dennett, will be mailed to President Hoover at the White House over the signature of more than 100 prominent men.

Their signatures will be offered, he said, with a view to their thus becoming voluntary violators of the law against sending obscene matter through the mails, an offense similar to that on which Mrs. Dennett was convicted by a jury in federal court last week.

Mrs. Dennett will be sentenced in Brooklyn tomorrow by Judge Warren B. Burroughs, before whom the case was tried.

She is liable to a fine of $10,000 and a maximum prison term of five years. She has announced that she will pay no fine, nor will she allow anyone else to pay.

Mr. Baldwin said that within a few hours after Mrs. Dennett is sentenced, there will be a meeting for the purpose of affixing to the pamphlet the names of physicians, professors, ministers, lawyers and prominent laymen, after which the pamphlet will be mailed to the White House.

SUBMISSION TO GOD.—I will bear the indignation of the Lord, because I have sinned against him, until he plead my cause, and execute judgment for me; he will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness.—Micah 7:9.

PRAYER—"O speak to reassure me, Thou Guardian of my soul."

THE NESTS OF JUSTICE.

The courts of the country are assumed to be the nesting places of pure justice. When they become foul, in any case, justice is polluted and perverted.

Signs are not wanting already that the Jones act of congress for the more drastic punishment of prohibition violations went a step too far.

Judges are showing reluctance to charge pursuit of the law upon grand and petit juries; federal attorneys are either ignoring its terms or inflaming prejudice against them; and trial juries, in the few cases thus far prosecuted under the act, are defying it with crassly inconsistent verdicts of not guilty. These are deplorable incidents to accompany any law imposed upon the courts of the nation for enforcement and execution; but they are unavoidable consequences of extreme resources to put terror into a law against which a decidedly strong public sentiment is arrayed.

So far as indications promise the Jones law will not effectuate the reformations that were hoped for by its framers. It rather tends to increase the spirit of revolt in those upon whose acts it can alone rely for its successful operation—that is, upon the jurors drawn from the great body of average citizenship.

No one can successfully argue that any law should be defied; all laws are due to be enforced.

But there is such a thing as a law defeating its enforcement by the unreasonableness and savagery of its terms.

THE COLLEGE RATIOS.

The National Bureau of Education has made a recent survey of colleges and universities, embracing the 624 institutions in the educational directory of 1928.

The results show that publicly controlled colleges and universities contain 40 per cent of all students; that private non-sectarian institutions have 31 per cent and church-controlled colleges enroll 29 per cent. Those figures appear to prove that of all those young persons in the nation who are seeking higher education for whatever purposes only two out of five come from the classes of population who rely upon public help and funds. The inference is that higher education makes the strongest appeal to those who are economically able to afford its cost.

Respecting the cost, the survey shows that the tuition rates in arts and sciences are highest in the non-sectarian institutions, and that women pay less in tuition and considerably more for living expenses than do the men students.

The present-day urge for education above the public school grades and high schools is so great that many of the colleges and universities have been compelled to limit their enrollments. Harvard, for instance, limits freshmen entrants to 1,000 and Yale draws the line at 850. Princeton takes on only a total of 2,200 annually, including all classes. The general rule seems to be to limit the student body to the number which the college is equipped to handle efficiently.

Looking ahead of all the data provided by the survey a constantly greater demand upon publicly controlled institutions for room and instruction is predicted. That means more pressure upon state legislators and educators to build up state institutions of every educational character. The youth of the state must be served better by the state, for the percentage of those who can afford the costs of higher education is growing smaller in proportion to youthful population. The facts should not escape the attention of our legislators and educators in Georgia.

REMINDERS OF THE PAST.

Action of the parks committee of city council in carefully preserving the old fortifications of the days of the War Between the States, which are found on the sites of the new Bobby Jones and Candler park golf courses, cannot be too highly commended.

There is too great a tendency, in this age of literalism and materialism, to forget the record of the past. It is a failing of the new generation to be so engrossed with their own affairs and their own amusements that they ignore the noble things achieved by their forefathers in support of ideals that should not pass from heart and mind.

There is nothing which keeps alive the sacred memories of the past and which so strongly impresses the lesson they have to teach for the future as the material evidence of the deeds brave men wrought for their faith in noble things unseen.

It will be peculiarly fitting in days to come that young Atlanta, playing the great old game of golf, driving, let us hope, straight down the fairway and approaching directly up to the pin, shall see as they play the evidences of the day, 70 years ago, when their grandsires used sabers instead of mashies and rifle balls made the score instead of golf balls.

Preserve the relics of old and let them remind us that we are of the blood of heroes.

YOUNG ORATORS.

There are many reasons why The Constitution takes pride in its privilege of sponsoring, for Georgia, the annual oratorical contest among high school students.

It has been generally conceded for many years that the golden age of oratory is past. There are today none of the spellbinders of the platform who 50 years ago charmed the ears of thousands. An age of efficiency has reduced the forensics of speaking to simple statements, quietly given, of statistics and demonstrable facts.

The high school oratory contests, however, are bringing back, among the younger generation, an ability to speak in public that will surely prove valuable in later life. This, however, is not the greatest benefit of these contests.

The true purpose, and the true benefit, is realized in the fact that these contests induce many thousands of young men and women to study the fundamental law of a nation. The requirements that every oration must be original and must deal with some phase of the federal constitution, impels every competitor—and it is estimated there are more than 2,000,000 annually in the United States—to study that famous document.

It is a great thing that high school students should thus be brought to study the principles upon which the republic was founded; the principles which inspire our laws and the foundation for everything that is worthy in American governmental life.

Judging by the opinions expressed by the 12 young orators who competed last Saturday in the state finals, the interpretation of that constitution, which they will write into the laws of the land when their time comes, will be a finer and a better interpretation than any of the past.

This newspaper is, we think, properly proud of its part in bringing these contests to the youth of Georgia.

Musical Trains.

The fine weather in France these last few weeks has set the annual exodus of Parisians for the seaside and the forest into motion. On Sundays especially the railway stations are packed with dense crowds. It is difficult to believe now that the railway companies at one time had to offer all sorts of attractions to get the Parisian to climb aboard and leave the city even for a few hours. The furthest he went was the Bois de Boulogne. Moreover there were a lot of people, horse-lovers and tradition-alists, who favored the old-time diligence for travel. So the railways got busy and installed musical bands at the various platforms and who accompanied the trans on excursion trips on Sundays. The public before long nibbled at the bait and soon the companies were obliged to refuse would-be passengers, so great was the desire to travel on the musical trains. Of course, it need not be said, the concerts were soon discontinued, but the habit of railway travel had been born.

Europe's Picture Of U. S.

We have often heard of foreign gentlemen visiting the United States and coming back to tell stories of unheard prosperity. Taken to some night club by their gracious hosts, they looked on as considerable sums of money were spent. They also noticed the costly adornments of the ladies present and the general air of disregard for money that many assumed. When they return to Europe they all sing the same tune. "The cost of living is excessive in the United States," they declare. "What a wealth those people must possess to live in such luxury and dissipation" Few take note of the other side of the picture. For there is plenty of misery and unemployment in America. On the other hand to produce at the rhythm that production is going in America at the present time, the outlet and the foreign market must constantly be enlarged. We all know it. But of the dozen or so important men who went from Europe in recent months to look at America and who have written books or articles on the subject, none refers to the great economic problems. It's Hollywood and Park Avenue, Miami and boat races, the fast and furious life of a leisure class that is portrayed and judged indicative of immense individual wealth of Americans. No wonder that Europeans feel they can charge visiting trans-Atlantic tourists double and treble the prices that they exact from natives.

General Weygand's Home.

That Paul Deschanel, the French statesman, who became president of the republic, was born in the Brussels suburb of Schaarbeek, is generally known. But that General Weygand, the late Marshal Foch's right-hand man, and liberator of Poland, now himself prominently mentioned as liable to receive the title of marshal of France, also hails from Klein Albert's capital is less generally known. General Weygand was born in a house well-known to every Bruxellois. It is known as the "Tavern of Waterloo." The Prince of Orange and Lord Wellington came there one morning for a drink after they had defeated Napoleon on the fields outside the present Belgian capital. Some years later, in 1830, when revolution broke out in Brussels, the house figured among those that were bombarded by the Dutch troops. Several cannon balls are still embedded in its facade.

Timely Views of Noted Americans

DEVELOPMENT OF WATERWAY PLAN URGED.

BY JAMES W. GOOD, Secretary of War.

(James William Good was born at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, September 24, 1866. He is a graduate of Coe college, later obtaining an L. L. B. degree at the University of Michigan. From 1906 to 1908 he was city attorney of Cedar Rapids. He was elected to congress the following year from the fifth Iowa district, serving until 1912. For two terms he was chairman of the committee on appropriations. He then resumed his law practice, at Chicago, until recently, when he was appointed secretary of war by President Hoover. His home is now in Evanston, Ill.)

A St. Lawrence waterway suitable for ocean-going traffic can be provided for $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 after crediting the improvement with the share of costs chargeable to power.

Economists calculate that 23,000,000 tons of freight would seek this route annually.

The inland waterways of the United States are necessary to the development of the middle west. Although improvements in the Great Lakes are by no means adequate, they are saving the country more than $200,000,000 annually in transportation costs. I do not believe that the linking of the ocean with the heart of the country would work out to disadvantage of American railroads.

Consider the picture of Chicago. Here at the apex of the Mediterranean, the wealth and opportunities of the world's richest continent are spreading at its feet. Nature's highways lead to it. The Great Lakes and Saint Lawrence river extend the generous hand of invitation to us; they fairly beseech us to cooperate in executing the almost trivial works that will convert them into a new Mediterranean for the newer continent. It is not even a difficult or an expensive engineering task to which they challenge us. It is far simpler and less difficult than building the Panama canal.

Not only must this whole waterways program be carried forward, but there must be no unnecessary delays. This great work of internal improvement will be carried forward as rapidly as appropriations by congress will justify. It is a vitally important link in the chains of plans for agricultural relief and will not brook of delay. A prosperous agriculture welfare. Indeed, as our industrialization goes on and on, a prosperous agriculture will become more, rather than less, important to the nation.

The World and All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

DISCREDITING INDIA.

Recently I met Mr. T. H. K. Rezmie, a very intelligent and liberal-minded journalist from India. We were talking about the innumerable American books that place India in an unfavorable light, and I suggested that the best move India could make would be the hiring of an expert American press agent, to put her case before the American people in a skillful and truthful manner. I believe Mr. Rezmie thought I was joking.

The Indians themselves are not gifted with a sense of publicity. They do not know how to put their case before Americans.

I submit a simple illustrative example.

Savel Zimand, author of "Living India," writing in the New York Evening Post, goes in for the usual Hindu refutation of Katherine Mayo's "Mother India." In order to prove that the United States is as bad as India in the matter of child marriage, this writer cites nine specific cases of child marriage.

He doesn't give a name, address or date in even one of the nine cases. Of course, no American will for one moment accept as true any of these citations.

"A judge reports the marriage of a child of 12 to a man of 39." This is one of the nine. What judge? What child? What man? I must assume that there is no such judge, no such child, no such man. Americans are accustomed to the use of names and dates and addresses when a true news stories are being printed, or when a case is being proved.

Savel Zimand goes on to state that "the legal minimum marriageable age in the United States with parental consent is 12 years for girls in 12 of our states."

This is quite inaccurate. Zimand cites no authority, presumably because he is his own authority. I cite the World Almanac.

There are three states, Louisiana, Kentucky and Maryland, in which the legal age of marriage for girls, with parental consent, is 12 years. There are five states in which no minimum age is specifically fixed. Why didn't Zimand consult and cite an authority? You see my point. India should combat American prejudice intelligently and truthfully. Her case is strong enough to require no quack support.

Until one has entered into the fold of the Christian religion he does well to fear for there is a basis of fact for fears that are dreadful beyond his ability, stupefied by sin as he is, fully to perceive.

Let him be glad when the awakening spirit of God arouses in him the sense of the sinfulness, the enormity, of his own personal sin.

The fear that results from this experience is indeed the beginning of wisdom for him.

Having, with this incitement, turned from his sin to serve the living God, he then enters into that experience so well expressed by the old hymn:

"Fear not, I am with thee
Oh be not dismayed!
I, I am thy God
And will still give thee aid."

EDITOR.

Q. Who originated the expression, "All is quiet along the Potomac"?

A. It was often repeated in bulletins issued by Secretary of War, Stanton, during the civil war, and it has become synonymous with "peace and rest." The statement is also attributed to General McClellan and to Secretary Cameron.

Q. What is the largest city park in the United States?

A. Fairmount Park in Philadelphia, which contains 2,648 acres.

Q. What is meant by being "moon struck?"

A. The expression "moon struck" is sometimes applied to persons who are mentally deranged or lunatic. Many persons have thought that the rays of the moon had a disastrous effect upon the mind: and the word lunatic is derived from "lunar" which means moon. There is no truth in this superstition, and science has proven absolutely that the moon has no effect on the health or mentality of persons. The expression is also applied to young lovers, who seem to have completely lost their reason and do strangely detached things. The reference, of course, is to the fact that they have been affected by a kind of a lunacy.

Q. What is Babe Ruth's salary?

A. He draws $70,000 a year.

Q. How can a suede jacket be washed?

A. Wash in warm water and pure soap suds to which about one tablespoon of household ammonia to a gallon of water has been added. Plunge up and down in the water, but do not rub. Rinse lightly and stretch to the desired shape and dry.

Q. What are the meanings of the names Kuno and Kuna?

A. They are German first names meaning "bold."

Q. Who wrote the book called, "We Fight for Oil."

A. Ludwell Denny.

Q. What is the national origins provision in the immigration law?

A. On Saturday March 23, 1929, a proclamation of President Hoover was issued which placed in effect on July 1, 1929, the national origins provision of the immigration law, which changes the quotas of immigrants to certain proportions of persons in the United States of various nationalities as determined by the 1920 census, instead of the quotas now in existence as determined by the census of 1890. Under this proclamation the number of immigrants annually would be reduced by about 10,000 and 153,714 would be admitted instead of 164,647 and the quotas of various countries would be changed.

Q. Who publishes the Automobile Blue Book?

A. The Chicago Auto Trade Association, 2508 South Michigan boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

Q. Why can a fly walk up smooth perpendicular surfaces and across the ceiling without falling off?

A. Because their feet are provided with soft pads upon which there is a slight adhesive moisture.

Q. Is there such a word as "anti-disestablishmentarianism?

A. Yes. It is a good English word and means "opposition to the theory of the disestablishment of the church."

Q. What is the name of Ramon Novarro's latest picture?

Q. What is the color of orchids?

A. The prevailing colors are rose, lilac, yellow, white and green.

Q. Where is Bohemia?

A. Bohemia was formerly a part of the Austrian empire, but since 1918 it has been a constituent part of the new Czechoslovak Republic. It is bounded by Saxony on the north, Bavaria on the west, Silesia on the east and Upper Austria on thesouth. Its area is about 20,065 square miles.

A. It is one of the easiest of wind instruments to learn.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

BY DR. S. PARKES CADMAN.

Questions from Constitution readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, radio minister of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

London, England.

Can you suggest a book which shows the better side of India as contrasted with that disclosed in Katherine Mayo's "Mother India"? There must be something more hopeful than the story she tells so vividly. I appeal to you because I am the daughter of a clergyman who gave his life to India.

Read Savel Zimand's volume entitled "Living India." Miss Mayo's book is depressing and I fear its presentations of India's native life are largely true. The objection you imply is forcibly urged by several writers who have hastened to India's defense with the unanimous plea that "Mother India" does no sort of justice to the other side of the shield. Undoubtedly, India's social and economic conditions are sadly below the mark. The contrast between Hinduism's lofty teachings and the fifth, squalor, disease, superstition and ignorance of many millions who profess those teachings, heighten one's sense of disappointment and even evoke indignation.

Why, for example, should a mere metaphor which, like that of the English philosopher, Thomas Hobbes, compared the various degrees of social life to a human body, be allowed to harden into the abominable caste system, which is a chief source of India's countless evils?

Child marriage, the subjection of woman, an almost universal illiteracy, combined with primeval methods of industrialism and agriculture accentuate the vast and intricate problem, not of the one, but of the many nations dwelling in that great peninsula known as India. It fosters scores of creeds, multiform languages and dialects, ethnical divisions, internal religious dissensions, thousands of subcate beneath the four main castes, including approximately 1,106 of these among the outcaste leather workers alone.

Mr. Zimand recognizes this drastic situation without extenuating it or blinking the facts. He pays a high tribute to the British rule and concedes the manifst benefits it has bestowed on India. But he also arraigns very clearly and unanswerably the "aloofness of the white man and the racial and social discriminations which he needlessly inflicts upon an ancient, a proud and a gifted people still capable of self-respect and so of deserving the respect of others."

Gandhi is India's spiritual splendor and his light shines afar. But the usefulness of his mission is thwarted by his deep distrust of western civilization. None can deny that there are strong reasons for this distrust. Nevertheless, it is unfortunate, since the great and salutary changes necessary for India can only be effected by the cordial co-operation of India and Great Britain and not by either acting separately from the other. I believe these changes are now more nearly imminent than ever before. I suggest you also read Stanley Jones on "The Christ of the Indian Road."

McKeesport, Pa.

Do you not believe that we are sacrificting to an unhealthy degree, truth to power, and social ideals to the lust for acquisition?

There are sufficient facts in any partial survey of our age to support one's philosophy about it. Nevertheless, I feel that the tone of your letter is over-stimulated along these lines. True, in many instances, material standards have entirely too much consideration in our social life, and men and women are frequently deprived of its values and thus prevented from its legitimate exercise.

Whenever this evil becomes pronounced the clever and the unprincipled see their opportunity to push their specious theories and non-social methods. Since nothing is so sacred as truth, when the agencies for its diffusion are diverted from their proper functions, public morality is endangered. He who poisons the reservoirs from which a city gets its drinking water is at once exposed and punished. If public opinion applied as readily a similar opprobrium and penalty to those who deliberately corrupt the sources of thought and knowledge, or exploit them in behalf of private profit and ambition, the main sprigs of our civic degradation would be speedily reduced.

The real enemies of mankind are suicidal ignorance and blind materialism. We organize in self-defense against physical attack. But how scanty in comparison is our defense and how comparatively few are our defenders against these dread foes of the spirit! They are likewise comparatively few in number who take a vital interest in the mobilization for public welfare of all the available forces of science, philosophy, religion and artistry.

The honors we pay to men and women whose vocation is the pursuit of the real in every realm, and its spread among the people, are often all too scanty, and in numerous instances have even been deferred until death has robbed us of the chance to show our gratitude to these benefactors during their lifetime. It is high time we recognized in more generous measure the scholar, the scientist, the metaphysician and the student who too often works in isolation, "the world forgetting, by the world forgot," unless they cater to its pride and gain.

SERMONS TO LIVE BY

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY, D. D.

Text: "Fear not." Luke 2:10.

To smile and work, and work and smile,
To smile twelve times a day,
Will take you o'er the stubborn mile
As you journey on your way.
To live, to love, to be sincere,
To strive, yet feel at peace,
Will drive away all kinds of fear,
Your troubles soon will cease."

Why poison our religion with fear? There is only one fear in religion that is justifiable to the child of God and that is a sense of awe—a sense of profound reverence which is conscious of the majesty of God and our own contrasting insignificance.

All other fear is contrary to the spirit of the Christian religion, once one has entered into its experiences.

Making the Cook Eat His Own Soup

Health Talks

BY DR. WM. F. BRADY

NOW IS THE TIME FOR TREE FEVER.

Hay fever, hey? You're not so warm. Not at this season of the year. Even in haytime or thereabouts you are probably barking up the wrong plant if you blame hay for your pollinosis. Pollinosis doesn't mean many noses, as any schoolboy with a working knowledge of Greek might suppose; it means pollen disease. If you have pollinosis right now it is not unlikely tree fever; that is, if you will waive the objection to calling your trouble fever—that's another odd thing about this alleged hay fever—it is neither hay nor fever, in the majority of cases. In fact, if a victim of hay fever actually does develop any fever, that is, elevation of body temperature above the normal, he has probably got some complication and he ought to consult a doctor regardless of the condition of the hay crop.

From the last of February to the end of May is the pollinating season for trees, and the pollen of a number of trees or shrubs causes trouble for sensitized persons. Among the varieties commonly found responsible, by skin scratch test, are cottonwood, oak, white ash, winged elm, red maple, black willow, swamp poplar, black walnut, aspen, white elm.

Of course there are other pollens than tree pollens in the air in April and May, but where the individual's season commences bright and early in March he may reasonably suspect the trees of the vicinity are responsible.

From 1 to 2 per cent of the entire population have pollinosis. Being subject to the disorder is no index of an individual intellectual or social superiority; it is just evidence that he happens to be sensitized to the pollen in question. How or why he has become so sensitized is a little mystery we are not yet prepared to elucidate, but, like the police searching for the perpetrator of a crime, we are following up clues and we are confident we will discover something soon.

Pollens vary as widely in character and appearance, under the microscope, as pineapples do from apples. Some pollen grains are smooth and rounded and these usually cause no trouble; other plants give off pollen grains that resemble burrs and these are often responsible for trouble.

Pollen is borne by the wind. If a sensitized individual could screen or filter all the air he breathes, through a filter fine enough to separate out the pollen grains, he would have no "hay fever" or pollinosis. If he can run away to a region where the plant responsible for his trouble does not grow, he will escape the attack. There is little pollen left in the air after a rainfall, and sufferers from pollinosis usually experience a period of comparative relief after a good shower. Victims of this disease commonly find they rest more comfortably with windows closed, to exclude the air and the pollen it carries.

Probably most victims of pollinosis get their annual attacks late in the summer or in the early autumn. They are prone to blame golden rod for it, because goldenrod happens to be in blossom just then. Goldenrod seldom causes trouble; the familiar ragweed is the usual cause of pollinosis so attributed to goldenrod.

If your trouble begins in March or April, you may suspect the trees, but not every case of persistent rhinitis is of this nature, and only the specific skin scratch tests applied by the physician, or a regular annual recurrence at the same season and an equally regular annual cessation of the attack when the pollinating season is over, will confirm the suspicion in any case.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Dieting.

I have been dieting for six weeks and in that time have lost 12 pounds. But the last two weeks I have not lost any. Why is that? (Mrs. J. H.)

Answer—Without knowledge of your diet I can only surmise that you take a maintenance diet for an individual of your present weight and activity. Such a diet would be a reduction diet for you when you were overweight.

Mr. Fuss Budget.

I take a face massage from my barber once a week. This massage leaves my skin feeling fine and clean. My skin is oily and I am exposed to dust a good deal outside in my work . . . (P. D. M.)

Answer—Unless you're paralyzed or something, I should advise that you wash and wipe your own face. If the skin is too oily, use plenty of soap and water, hot, then rinse repeatedly in cold water. Then a brisk toweling. A daily application of a lotion consisting of 10 grains of resorcin to the ounce of toilet water or bay rum will correct the excessive oiliness. The finest face massage is that of a pair of six ounce gloves on the dukes or a gentle yet dynamic friend.

Liver and Let Live.

I am a victim of pernicious anemia, and every few months I seem to have a relapse. I have taken liver in all forms, raw, cooked, extracted, and finally I discovered . . . 's extract which I have taken more or less regularly but it is frightfully expensive . . . (H. N.)

Answer—I believe any kind of liver cooked or prepared in any way you like, is efficacious against pernicious anemia (though useless in ordinary secondary anemia) if the patient takes half a pound or its equivalent thrice weekly for an indefinite period. If you tire of eating liver prepared in one way, vary the method of cooking and serving. The extracts have no advantage, except that they may be administered by injection when the patient cannot eat.

Soda Is Saleratus.

What, if any, difference is there between bicarbonate of soda and saleratus? (Mrs. E. G.)

Answer—Saleratus is a common name for soda or bicarbonate of sodium. There is no difference practically.

The Boy Won't Try Your Medicine If It Robs You of Manhood

By Robert Quillen

The normal girl of fifteen and the normal boy of eighteen are the most intolerant of critics.

They have outgrown the unquestioning faith of childhood; they have not yet learned the compassion that hard experience brings.

Their eyes are opened, and the smug, self-righteous world about them seems peopled with hypocrites who merit the scorn of all who are clean and straightforward.

It is at this period of their lives that preachers' sons begin to "go wrong," and the sons and daughters of the pious begin to disgrace the family.

Not all preachers' sons run wild, but only the sons of preachers who preach one code and practice another; and if the children of the pious become black sheep, it is because they hear more piety than they see.

When a preacher's son hears and takes part in family quarrels; observes the practice of selfishness; hears his neighbors criticized in terms of hatred and envy, and observes that his parents, for all their preaching of righteousness, are much like others, his intolerant young heart is filled with scorn, and he says: "Where is this brotherly love of which I hear so much? Where is this foregiveness? Where the sweet spirit of self-sacrifice—the freedom from envy and malice? They are hypocrites, all of them; righteous in public, giving lip service to goodness; but in secret they are full of hate and self-seeking and covetous discontent."

Disillusioned and shamed, he turns his back on righteousness until age brings him wisdom and tolerance and he learns pity for the weak who mean well and yet lack the strength of character to do well.

Youth scorns precept without example.

It learns by imitating the ways of those it admires.

And this explains the failure of parents and mentors who would teach youth to revere religion.

Religion cannot be taught; it must be absorbed from an environment—as table manners, figures of speech, courtesy and ethics are absorbed.

Practice in the home a religion of unselfishness and forgiveness, the worship of God and love for your fellow men, and the children will follow your example if they hear no word of instruction.

But neither prayers nor precepts can make your children accept or respect religion if malice, selfishness, envy and a quarrelsome spirit dominate the home between seasons of prayer.

Your Broadway and Mine

BY WALTER WINCHELL.

New York, April 28.—A simple trick, so obvious and so fool-proof that it is surprising no one ever thought of it before, is being used by New York business concerns to protect their checks, and it seems likely to make expensive check-protecting machinery as obsolete as buggy whips. Half a dozen checking accounts are opened. Against one are drawn checks of less than $100; against the second are drawn checks of $100 to $500, for example; against the third are drawn checks of $500 to $1,000, and so on. Since the account number appears on the check, which two or three banks are beginning to supply in distinctive, standardized colors, each check is as proof against tampering as a piece of paper money.

IMAGINE.

They tell it on Dorothy Parker, who failed in Hollywood. This episode is one of the reasons. The clever woman, whose articles and verse illumine the better mags, offered one of her unpublished yarns to the moom pitcher people as soon as she arrived in California. When she attended the first showing in a projection room she discovered that not a trace remained of her effort. Title, plot and characters were switched beyond the identification stage.

"Considering that you have not employed my story or the title," she said to the magnate of the firm, "will you permit me to sell the story to a magazine?"

"Yes," was the reply, "but on condition that you let us have the movie rights."

JAMES! MY LORGNETTE!

Arriving tardy at the Theater Guild's new play Monday night, your courier rested an elbow on the rear orchestra rail of the Martin Beck theater until the first scene was over—so that he would not disturb those seated. He neglected to remove his Stetson, and a voice which belonged to Lawrence Langner (one of the Guild's bigger shots), grumbled: "Take off that hat!" There was no Roxy theater courtesy in his tone, if you get what we mean.

"That" hat was removed, however, but imagine your deputy's joy when he observed a pair of lads not two feet away whose headpieces remained on their domes, with no Langner or any other attache rebuking them for their ungentlemanly conduct. The two fellows were Robert Sisk, the Guild's press agent, and Philip Moeller, the Guild's director.

There ought to be a law not only for white people but for Theater Guilders who wear Truly Warners!

To New York		No Sunday schedule

To Miami	On time	7:20 a. m.

With the arrival at Candler field Sunday of Doug Davis in a new Travel Air six-place monoplane—powered with a new Wright J-6 300-horsepower motor—the Atlanta flying school of Southern Air Transport, Inc., went into official operation. The Texas concern, which is a holding company for several airmail lines, including the operators of the Atlanta-New Orleans route, recently purchased the entire equipment owned by Doug Davis at Candler field, including a large metal hangar and half a dozen Travel Air biplanes. The local flier will act as local manager for the school.

Early this week, Mr. Davis stated Sunday afternoon, the company will send on two more ships from Fort Worth in charge of transport pilots who will serve as instructors here. These two ships, both of which will be Curtiss Robins, will be supplemented by others to be sent here from the Texas headquarters of the company. The school in Atlanta will be complete and thorough in every respect and will include a thorough-going ground course in addition to air work.

With the completion of lighting arrangements along the transcontinental airways between Salt Lake City and the Pacific coast the mail, beginning May 1, will be flown across the continent on a 31-hour schedule. Previously the planes have had to fly over the mountains only during daylight hours, this adding many hours to the schedules.

Under the new schedules mail over the main artery will leave coast terminals after the close of the daily business anad will arrive at its destination early on the second morning, in time for the first delivery. Formerly the mail arrived too late for afternoon delivery and thus a whole business day was often lost. The schedules also will benefit cities along the route and cities on branch lines.

Coincidentally with the announcement of the new transcontinental reduced time schedules comes the news that three flying boat services are proposed between Seattle and Alaska. The flying time, it is estimated, over this route will be only slightly more than 12 hours, in contrast to the present three-and-a-half day steamer schedule.

Surveys are now being made routing the planes over the "inside passage" and providing for stops at several Canadian cities. The American Air Transport association is backing the movement and it is expected that services may be started before the lapse of this summer.

It is interesting to note that the flying boats and amphibians, which formerly were not believed feasible for commercial flying, are rapidly winning their way into the ranks of mail and commercial planes. Colonel Lindbergh's flight to Panama centered the attention of the country upon the amphibian type, but before this air transport companies had begun to realize that these sea-going craft had a place in their systems.

The most recent acceptance of these planes occurred when two companies announced schedules between Great Lakes cities. One concern will operate flying boats between Buffalo, Cleveland and Detroit, and a second will use amphibians to fly four daily round-trips between Detroit and Cleveland.

Official figures for the year just past show that of the 140,000,000 letters carried during 1928 over air mail routes the percentage of loss in transit was only .00081. Another interesting fact revealed by the post office department is that a very large percentage of air mail letters carried too much postage. Most of those erring in this way had placed a two-cent stamp on the letter, in addition to the regular five-cent air mail stamp.

ATLANTA JOINS IN TORNADO AID

tents, blankets and cots had been sent from Fort McPherson, of Atlanta. Relief directors at Statesboro, Metter and Cochran, Ga., the three major relief centers, said these would be set up near the homes that were destroyed or on the floors of the wrecked dwellings.

Relief appeared to be well organized tonight in all tornado-swept districts except Emanuel county, Ga., near Norristown, where acute suffering was reported. Although none was killed there, many dwellings were demolished and refugees in the rural sections were in urgent need.

Rehabilitation in South Carolina was functioning effectively.

ARMY CHIEF VISITS METTER.

Metter, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—Colonel Fred W. Bugbee, commander of the eighth infantry at Fort Screven, Savannah, Ga., designated by fourth corps area headquarters of the United States army at Fort McPherson, to make a survey of the tornado damage in Bulloch, Candler and Emanuel counties, visited here today.

Following interviews with relief committee members he requested that 30 pyramidal tents, 300 blankets and 150 cots be sent here to make provisions for 150 people in need of help. These were shipped from Fort McPherson this afternoon and will reach here tomorrow.

Colonel Bugbee, who left a detachment of troops on a hike to come to the tornado area, left for Emanuel county to make a further survey of damage and relief needs. He stated that the relief work had been handled well at Statesboro and that a shipment of tents, cots and blankets had been made from Port McPherson for Bulloch county relief.

CARLOAD OF SEED ARRIVES AT STATESBORO.

(By The United News.)

Twin necessities which rise in the wake of every catastrophe—the sorrowful task of burying the dead and the urgent problem of caring for the homeless, Sunday occupied the tornado-stricken sections of central and eastern Georgia.

Even as the last of the 47 victims claimed by Thursday's tempests were lowered into their graves at Statesboro, Metter and Cochran, word came that renabilitation plans have gone forward with dispatch, and that they will be put into execution this morning.

The distribution of huge quantities of tents, cots, clothing, seed and other necessities will get under way at break of dawn. National and local Red Cross workers will be assisted by county and municipal authorities and by convict labor, impressed into service to help bring comfort and shelter to the approximately 1,000 persons who are homeless.

400 Injured.

In the meantime, of the 400 or more injured, nearly a quarter of this number still were in hospitals, a few of them, it is feared, never to recover.

The two tornados struck at Cochran late Thursday afternoon and in the Metter-Statesboro district between 11 p. m. and midnight of the same day. The death toll which Friday stood at 45 persons, was brought to 47 by the death of two others, Virginia Akins, 9, at Statesboro, and a negro baby near Metter.

A carload of seed, secured through the offices of Congressman Charles G. Edwards, has arrived at Statesboro, as have many tents and cots from Camp Jessup. This morning distribution of the materials will be begun.

At Metter, which with Statesboro, bore the brunt of the savage winds, relief work was being handled by Red Cross and municipal officials. Colonel Bugbee, commandant of Fort Screven, was here Sunday and announced that he would recommend that cots, blankets, bandages and other medical supplies be shipped from Atlanta.

PEACH CROP NOT DAMAGED.

Macon, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—According to reports to the Georgia Peach Growers' exchange there was practically no damage from hail to the peach crop in last Thursday's tornado. W. C. Bewley, general manager of the exchange, said that he had made a thorough survey of the situation.

Mr. Bewley stated that sixty trees were destroyed in one orchard at Cochran, but in the big orchards at Byron, Fort Valley, Perry and other points hail missed the orchards.

Mr. Bewley stated that indications are that the crop would be light. He looks for first shipments of Mayflowers about May 18. But there is not enough of this variety for carload shipments. Uneedas will follow Mayflowers by one week, unless cool weather prevents normal ripening of the fruit.

EDWARDS URGES NEED FOR HELP.

Savannah, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—The tornado-swept sections around Statesboro and Metter were visited today by Mayor Gordon Saussy, of Savannah, and Stewart E. Kraft, head of the Savannah chapter of the Red Cross Society, while Congressman C. G. Edwards, of the first district, returned this morning after some hours spent Saturday in making a survey of the extent of the damage and the need for relief.

After his investigation Congressman Edwards immediately wired Senators Harris and George and Congressman Larsen, of the twelfth district, reporting great suffering in many localities, particularly in some areas where every vestige of what families owned has been obliterated. In his estimate there will be needed one million dollars to replace the damage to property. The congressman said that there was some money left from the $6,000,000 storm relief fund of 1928 and that one million dollars would be needed to meet the loss occasioned in property and crop damage.

Wide Destruction Area.

Mr. Kraft, after his survey, said that the destruction area was widely scattered and that it would take a whole day to cover the territory through which the storm cut its destruction. The injured have been concentrated in hospitals in Statesboro and two Savannah nurses were taken to Metter to aid in the relief work. Two negro nurses also left today for Statesboro to aid the negro injured there.

J. W. Clark, National Red Cross representative, was in charge, Mr. Kraft said, and national representatives will be left by Mr. Clark in the Statesboro section and also in the Dublin section to superintend the Red Cross work. The main relief should be in money, said Mr. Kraft. There will be no special drive by the Red Cross in Savannah but voluntary subscriptions, preferably in cash, will be received, forwarded to national headquarters, and transmitted through that source to the sufferers.

Colonel F. W. Bugbee, of the eighth U. S. infantry, and Captain John Rodman, both from Fort Screven, Ga., were on the scene investigating the need for cots, tents and similar supplies which will be sent from fourth corps area headquarters.

Red Cross work will consist principally in restoring homes destroyed by the tornado, in furnishing seed for the replanting of what crops may be planted now, and in putting those surviving who have lost practically all their property on a supporting basis once more, Mr. Kraft said.

TORNADO HITS CAMDEN, S. C.

Camden, S. C., April 28.—(AP)—A negro woman was killed and 15 white persons injured by a tornado that struck near here this afternoon.

The storm broke at 2:30 p. m. in the West Wateree section, where all of the damage was done. The negress killed was Nora Murphy, about 70 years old.

Those injured, none seriously, hospital attendants said, were: Mary Branham, 15; Eloise Branham, 18; Mrs. Martha Williams, 23, and infant daughter; Mrs. Ida Branham, 45; Braley Branham, 4; Purday Ray, 28; Nick Ray, 35; James Day, 28; Louise Day; Arthur Branham, 12; John Branham, 10; Manuel Branham and Albertus Branham, 8.

J. F. McDowell, Camden newspaperman, was flying from Greenville to Camden, with L. A. Kirkland and George M. Keightley, of Greenville, pilot, when the plane ran into the tornado near Carlisle. McDowell said the plane was blown from Carlisle to King's Mountain, N. C., a distance of about a hundred miles, before the pilot could get out of the storm. The plane later landed at Camden.

The tornado first destroyed the home of Bocker Branham, about five miles from Camden. It was here that the casualties occurred. Debris from the dwelling was strewn over a wide area. Three other houses in the vicinity were wrecked. An automobile standing in the yard was blown several hundred yards. The storm cut a path about 500 yards wide and was of short duration.

It struck Camden shortly after leaving the West Wateree section and did considerable damage to several buildings. No one was injured in Camden.

At Antioch, ten miles east of Camden, the schoolhouse was badly damaged. The Woodman hall there was lifted from its foundation and moved several feet.

RED CROSS WORKERS ARRIVE IN DUBLIN.

Dublin, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—American Red Cross representatives arrived here today, and will direct relief work for those who suffered in the path of the cyclone which visited Laurens county Thursday afternoon when two were killed, 25 injured, and when 27 homes were destroyed and eight were damaged.

The twister entered Laurens county near Chester and moved in the direction of Dublin on the south side of the Wrightsville and Tennille railroad, sweeping a path of from 500 to 1,200 yards in width from the county line to Turkey creek, three miles south of Dublin, where it was lost.

The local chapter of the American Red Cross, under the direction of H. R. Moffett, chairman, and L. B. Lord, chairman of disaster relief committee, with the assistance of volunteer workers, was on the scene of the disaster within two hours after the passage of the tornado. Every emergency need had been given assistance and eight victims have been cared for in the Dublin hospital, while 17 are in homes of friends or relatives.

The farmers suffering in this disaster were also victims of floods in this section last year, and their farms produced less than one-half the normal crop last year. This means the loss of homes, farms, food supplies, livestock, farm impliments, pastures and fences, for the cyclone of Thursday makes it impossible for them to plant and cultivate crops again unless assistance is given.

ALBERT THORNTON, LIONS' DIRECTOR, TO SPEAK AT MEET

Valdosta, Ga., April 28.—(Special.) Albert Thornton, of Tampa, Fla., the only southern member of the board of directors of Lions International, will be the guest of honor at the state convention of Georgia Lions in this city next week.

Mr. Thornton is a native of Georgia, having been born at Macon about 49 years ago, the family removing to Alabama where his education was commenced in the public schools of Montgomery. In 1904 Mr. Thornton went to Jacksonville, Fla., and he has since than time been a resident of Florida. He went with R. G. Dun & Co., at Jacksonville, then becoming connected with a New York concern as a distributor, remaining in that business for 20 years.

Mr. Thornton will be the principal speaker on the program at the business session on Wednesday, May 1, the opening date of the state convention.

Fish Reclamation Work Is Pushed In South Georgia

Waycross, Ga., April 28.—(Special.)—Millions of fish marooned in small lakes, creeks, and ponds of south Georgia are being reclaimed under the supervision of the state board of game and fish and transferred to live streams.

Peter S. Twitty, state game and fish commissioner, has appealed to the sportsmen of south Georgia to assist in this project, pointing out that the saving of he fish will be a valuable move for fisherman. The small streams and overflow places, flooded by the recent freshets in this part of the state, are alive with fish, and in some counties it is against the law to catch them because of the closed season.

Commissioner Twitty asks that the location of fish lakes, where there is danger of fish perishing as the water recedes and the lakes dry up, be reported to the fish and game department. A. A. Hall of Homerville, and J. L. Murray, of Pearson, are in charge of the reclamation project, and will provide for the seining of lakes and the transfer of fish, if they are notified of conditions deserving attention.

With Four Weeks Consumed And Nothing Accomplished, Florida Solons Await Bills

Tax Revision and Appropriation Retrenchment Measures Still in Committee in Both Houses.

Tallahassee, Fla., April 28.—(AP)—Legislative desks, piled high with an accumulation of nearly 800 bills, will be relieved of some of their burden this week. This was the general belief of members of the Florida legislature as they prepared today to enter upon the fifth week of the 1929 session.

With one exception, the major bits of 1929 statecraft have been submitted in their preliminary phrasing to the senate and house of representatives. The last week saw the introduction of a host of taxation and revenue measures, with Governor Carlton's tax administration program leading the van.

The introduction of green fruit laws, covered in a number of bills, brought out another phase of the major legislation that senate and house members expected to study. Public hearings held during the week have developed the green fruit situation to a place where enactment of some type of rigid protective law is expected by the senate and house within a short time.

Major Bills in Caucus.

Everglades flood control measures are expected to appear on the floor of the house tomorrow. They will be introduced to represent the combined study and investigation of a group of South Florida legislators and experts along this line.

With these three general subjects introduced in the legislature, members of the state's law-making body believe that they have before them the session's most important topics.

The revenue, tax and green fruit bills have not returned from committee rooms to the floor for action, however. In this respect, they are like many of the 800 measures which have flooded the legislature since its opening four weeks ago.

Governor Carlton's tax bills, or other measures aimed at the same result and scheduled to alter the complexion of the state's tax structure, represent in the minds of many of the senators and representatives the major work for the last half of the 60-day session.

To Hold Tax Hearings.

The administration bills, according to Governor Carlton, were offered to the legislature with the idea of providing the greatest possible amount of tax relief without the imposition of any more new taxes than was necessary. The chief executive had studied his plan in company with financial experts and attorneys from all over the state, prior to their introduction.

Legislators were unanimous today in their belief that the governor will offer strenuous objection to alternation of the bills in any way unless some method is devised to handle Florida's present tax situation more efficiently.

Public hearings on the administration bills have been scheduled for Tuesday by both bodies of the legislature. The senate's committee on finance and taxation will hold its meeting for public discussion of the measures Tuesday afternoon. The house finance and taxation group will sponsor an open meeting Tuesday night for the same purpose.

Friends and foes of the Carlton tax plan are expected to voice their sentiments toward possible passage, alteration or rejection at these meetings.

With but few exceptions, the senate and house have failed to pass any of the approximately 800 measures now pending. Committee reports have been appearing slowly, and comparatively few general measures have been sent by the two houses to the governor's office for signature.

Much Local Legislation.

A host of local legislation has been passed by the senate and house by special consideration in extra sessions.

The present situation in both houses has puzzled legislative observers seeking to find any consistent line of division of votes. The house, the larger body of the two, has as yet taken no vote which might be regarded as a test of strength along any line, the observers declared today.

Preliminary sounding of legislative feeling in the senate was equally unsatisfactory from a point of determining a demarcation line, it was declared.

Members of the senate and house today expressed the view that the two bodies have before them the job of completing the administration tax plan before they accept or reject it.

As the bills were submitted by Governor Carlton, no definite provision was made to provide the revenue that would be taken from the state's schools. Under this plan to create a pool for retirement of county and district road and bridge indebtedness, the one cent gasoline tax that has previously gone to schools would be transferred to the fund. The governor's plan provided for the construction of a pool for handling school indebtedness, but it recommended no source of revenue with which to fill the pool, the legislators pointed out today.

To Cut Appropriations.

Whether this point will be handled by the legislature with an additional tax on insurance premiums, by a tax on intangibles, or by a new method of tax diversions which is being studied out by a number of senate and house members appeared problematical in general consideration by members of the body today.

It was generally forecast that determined efforts will be made in both houses during the week to bring from committee rooms the many bills that have been sent there in the first month of the session, and which, in the large majority have remained there. Tendency along this line was noted in the house the last of the week, with numerous requests by bill sponsors that their measures be returned to the calendar for action following failure of committees to report their findings.

Legislators today also freely predicted a concerted drive to tighten the reins in regard to appropriation measures. With many thousands of dollars under consideration by committees now, the members of the two bodies indicated that attempts will be made to bring the measures into the senate and house for early consideration.

DR. SCHACHT RETURNS TO BERLIN, KEEPS MUM

German Reparations Delegate To Stay Away From Paris for Week.

Berlin, April 28.—(AP)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht today enoyed a respite between his task as head of the German experts on the international reparations committee and his duties as president of the Reichsbank which call for his attention on Wednesday.

He arrived here from Paris this morning, but he did not confer with any member beyond the scheduled meeting of the board of directors of the Reichsbank on Wednesday. He remained, in fact, in strict seclusion and there was no information of his views or contemplated action on either of the major financial problems which confront him. His arrival here today apparently was prompted solely by personal reasons and the fact that he could contribute little at this stage to the preparation of the reparations report.

The Associated Press learned tonight that as the result of the impending meeting of the bank directors an official announcement was expected on the stability of German currency and of the attitude of the Reichsbank toward what has been publicly called "French machinations against the German mark."

Whether the board of directors will suggest further measures than the recent raising of the discount rate was expected to depend largely on the report of Dr. Schacht on his Paris conversations with Sir Josiah Stamp and Owen D. Young. It was probable that he could not return to Paris before Wednesday night.

The board was expected to conclude that the strict regulations governing issue of bank notes by the Reichsbank preclude any great tumble in the value of the mark. The Reichsbank, moreover, still has a margin of 1,000,000,000 marks as coverage.

Dissatisfaction has spread in Berlin over the progress and nature of the experts negotiations in Paris. Rumors persist in official circles that in view of unfavorable business it has become incumbent to supplant the experts conference by a diplomatic conference as soon as possible.

Prominent persons in Wilhelmstrasse maintain that the German delegation alone has adhered "possibly too rigidly" to the original idea of appointing economic experts exclusively for the conference to act independently of their governments.

LONG TO TAKE STUMP BEFORE SENATE TRIAL

Young Governor Plans Invasion of New Orleans in Public Defense.

Baton Rouge, La., April 28.—(AP)—During the lull preceding the start of his trial before the senate on eight impeachment charges, Governor Huey P. Long plans to mount the platform to argue his case with the people. He announced today he would speak next Wednesday night at the Athenaeum, the largest auditorium in New Orleans, and would hake other speeches before May 14, the date set for the trial. In coming to New Orleans, Governor Long would be bringing his fight into the home grounds of his political opponents as he has charged frequently from the stump that New Orleans politicians were responsible partly for his impeachment by the house of representatives.

While the governor admitted he is busily engaged in the preparation of his defense, he has declined to say what counsel will defend him. Several attorneys in the state have been mentioned and in some quarters it is believed the executive will take an active part in his own defense as he is a lawyer by profession.

This city today looked deserted compared with throngs that invaded it during weeks of the hearing by the house. Preparations were made to install emergency fixtures in the senate chamber for the trial as decision was reached to conduct the hearing in the small senate wing of the capitol rather than in the larger house chamber.

Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill is expected to don his official court robes when he presides over the trial and to conduct the case with the stern dignity of a supreme court in sharp contrast to the wild scenes attendant upon the impeachment of the governor in the house.

UNABLE TO ENLIST IN NAVY, MARINES MAN FOUND DEAD

Savannah, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—The mysterious disappearance of Mack Barnes, 23, missing for seven weeks, was explained partially today, with the discovery of his dismembered skeleton in a swamp near Pooler today.

Through a stickpin found near the skeleton, police identified it as that of Barnes, whom they believe killed himself, following his unsuccessful attempts to enlist in the navy or marines.

Clothing found at the scene, a watch, a stickpin, a pocket book and a knife were identified by Mrs. W. W. Lee, of Pooler, as possessions of her missing brother.

Police said relatives had told them Barnes was depressed when last seen and finding of a shotgun near the skeleton strengthened their theory of suicide.

The discovery was made by L. D. Grady, Sr., and L. D. Grady, Jr., who were taking a short cut to their home from a neighbor's house.

An inquest will be held tomorrow.

EDGWOOD SHINGLES
Right Over the Old Roof

SAVE labor and exsense of removing the old shingles, eliminate unsightly litter, possible damage to shrubs and plants, and provide protection in the event of sudden storms during construction.

EDGWOOD Shingles are cut edge-grain and positively will not warp, cup or curl—they force the old shingles tight to the sheathing and lie tight and flat for fifty years and more.

Applying EDGWOOD Shingles in this manner is not new, as it has long been practised in cold climates to apply Red Cedar Shingles over tight sheathing and building paper. It is a fallacy to assume that EDGWOOD Shingles will decay if laid over old shingles — rot-promoting fungi can find no weakness in British Columbia Red Cedar, as Nature has endowed this wood with preservative oils.

EDGWOOD Shingles are cut edge-grain and permit a 5" exposure to the weather for 16" shingles, and 5½" for 18" shingles. They have greater covering capacity, consequently cost no more than the ordinary flat grain shingle. In fact, they cost a whole lot less, when you realize that you have a fifty-year roof free from trouble.

"EDGWOOD HOMES" is an interesting and informative illustrated booklet. We'll gladly send it free on receipt of name and address.

Imperial Bedding Company Adds Rug Cleaning Section

If housewives of Atlanta could see the method of renovating their mattresses in the new Imperial Bedding Company plant at 691-693 Whitehall street they would marvel at the rapidity and thoroughness with which their old mattresses are treated to make them absolutely clean.

A mattress or load of them arrives at the plant, and no matter where they come from, they are first put into the electric sterilizing machine, where the temperature is run up to 240 degrees. They are left in this machine a given period of time to prevent any parasite from escaping quick death, and no matter how thick the mattress may be, the bug or germ that may be in its middle is quickly reached and destroyed by this intense heat.

From the sterilizer the mattresses go to a number of long tables where they are stripped of old ticking or covering and the cotton felt or other filling is then run through a cotton gin to loosen it up and make it fluffy again. From the gin it passes through the blower, where every particle of dust is blown out of the lint, and at this point, Mr. Moore claims, the filling is made cleaner and freer from dust than a new mattress ordinarily would be, as the blower is most powerful and the cotton or felt has been thoroughly broken up.

From the dust-blowing machine the cotton or felt is run through a large improved felting machine that is the first of its kind to come south. When the material is run through a series of special rolls it is made uniformly soft and downy, and is then formed into cotton or felt bats or filling.

From the felting machine the soft, purified cotton or felt is put into the ticking or covers selected by the owner from a large assortment of materials and patterns. The work then goes to the stitchers, where expert men of many years' experience quickly sew it into the particular style of mattress the owner desires.

"To those who never had a mattress renovated, we say that in your old mattress you have in the filling the material that costs the largest portion in the make-up of a mattress. No matter how old, how lumpy and soiled your mattress may be, we will send you back a mattress that will be so soft and comfortable that you will wonder why you have not called us to make it over for you before," officials say.

The Imperial Bedding Company has recently added a new rug-cleaning department on the upper floor of its large and well-lighted building. Due to the fact that the company is cleaning all rugs in a new and improved way, it will get all dirt out of them and yet not take the stiffness out of the body of the rug. This means that a rug sent to the Imperial Bedding Company to be cleaned will be returned promptly looking almost like new, and yet not roll or muss up on the floor every time some one walks across it.

EAST POINT FIRM SHOWS SPLENDID LINE OF COUCHES

The Atlanta Tent & Awning Co., with general offices and factory at East Point, Ga., is showing this season one of the most complete lines of couch hammocks ever seen in this part of the country.

These beautiful pieces of porch, lawn or living room furniture are made in many attractive designs, ranging from simple striped patterns to the most elaborate and gorgeous Japanese designs. No matter how small the cottage or pretentious the home may be, this firm makes the right couch hammock for all.

The Atlanta Tent & Awning Co. having manufactured hundreds of tents and awnings for more than a quarter of a century, has attained the experience necessary to please the most discriminating taste. It builds into its products that measure of style, comfort and durability which makes the "Style-Built" line an outstanding one that gives satisfaction to home-owners.

As these couch hammocks are portable, those having rollers on them can be moved about at the will of the housekeeper. Those without rollers can be moved quickly from the living room to the porch or lawn by two people. Some styles are made with the backward and forward swing motion; others have a gliding movement and some can be made rigid so that persons reclining in them may have restful comfort.

The hammock couches also make very useful pieces of furniture for the sun parlor, and four people can sit in one of them when sitting room is needed. No matter where they are placed in the house or on the lawn, they are the most sought-after resting place and add much to the comfort of any home.

In addition to couch hammocks, this firm makes a fine line of couch pillows and head roll rests of various styles and patterns in the same cloth as the hammocks are made of.

All these couch hammocks and pillows are made under the trade name, "Style-Bilt" under which this firm has been making tents and awnings the past dozen years.

MANY PEOPLE DO NOT FORGET DEPARTED ONES

Thoughtful people from time immemorial have venerated their dead, and in many various ways have given expression to their love and respect for their loved ones or friends who have passed on by marking their last resting place with some suitable marker commensurate with their wealth or station in life.

A visit to any graveyard will disclose a great number of neglected, unmarked graves. Surely the families might at times visit them and place flowers or make some arrangement even at this late date to see that loved ones' graves are suitably marked.

Of all the people in the world Georgians and those of near-by states have the least reason to let the graves of their loved ones remain unmarked, for within the confines of this state may be found the largest and best supply of marble and granite to be found elsewhere in the world, and the cost of headstones is less near the base of supply than at remote distances.

The cost of headstones and other grave markers vary upward from a very few dollars. As the size and design are subject to the buyer's individual taste and pocketbook, it requires a well-stocked sample and show room to give the average person the real opportunity of selecting what it wants. The Enterprise Marble Company, of 445 Marietta street, shows the best designs in modern headstones and vaults.

Both members of this firm, the Rudd brothers, have been in this line for a good many years and they lend their counsel and advice to all who seek it in the selection of markers. They also give all information that governs regulations as to size and height permitted in the different cemeteries in this section of Gebrgia.

The Enterprise Marble Company maintains a marble finishing shop, and any design wanted is executed to the order of the buyer. Salesrooms and shops are accessible to all, and plenty of short-time parking space is available in the vicinity. Those who have a loved one in some cemetery may call there and get reasonable prices on marble or granite headstones.

Atlanta Garage Men Render Good Service to Customers

Atlanta is keeping well abreast of the needs of auto owners in downtown parking garages. There are several large ones that are rendering efficient service to their patrons any time day or night.

Parking service offered by the Cain Street Garage, with its two large garages at 17 Cain street and 76-82 Cain street, is being appreciated more and more by hundreds of pleased car owners who store cars there for a few hours or by the month.

These garages are owned by W. A. and B. H. McWhorter and are located near Atlanta's busiest hotels and theaters. The McWhorter brothers are pioneers in downtown garages, and they see that each car owner is pleased with the service they render.

The McWhorter brothers had only a two-story building at 17 Cain street, N. E., for their first 10 years in business, but a little over a year ago they built a much larger building at 76-82 Cain street in the next block and have room for more than 300 cars day or night.

As the large building was especially built for this purpose and all cars are on the ground floors, any car parked can be brought out in less than a minute. In the big, new garage all services, such as gas, oil, alemiting, greasing, washing and polishing can be had, as well as small shop repairs. There are day and night forces and any kind of repair job can be done overnight, so the car owner who can not spare his car during the day can have it repaired while he sleeps.

As these garages are official A. A. A. discount stations as well as Georgia State Automobile Association stations, both of which are headquarters for tourists and visitors to Atlanta, the owners invite all who desire road information as well as information about Atlanta and vicinity to drop by or telephone. Writing material and other conveniences are available to all patrons and friends.

Both of the McWhorter brothers are boosters of their street and say that since the new smooth pavement has been laid traffic has increased wonderfully and car owners can get in or out of either of their garages in quick time. They also say that late comers to Atlanta will find their doors open wide, and the person who wishes to make a short or long start before daylight can get his car filled with gas and oil and get away any time it pleases him.

GOOD ENVELOPES CONVEY GOOD FIRST IMPRESSION

From S. Guthman, president of the Atlanta Envelope Company, largest manufacturer of commercial envelopes exclusively in the southeast, comes a clipping from "Postage and the Mail-bag," which is considered of general interest:

"When a personal salesman first comes into your office, his dress has an effect on you," the clipping sets forth. "Subconsciously his dress has some effect on his selling. It is the same with the envelope of a letter. Before you open a letter, the envelope makes either a good, a bad or an indifferent impression on you.

"The impression made by the dress of the salesman and the one made by the envelope starts the selling. It is the first shot in the selling campaign. Many business firms think that envelopes are a necessary evil and in their plan of selling give them only secondary importance. Your envelopes—all your envelopes—can be made a most effective advertising medium at trifling cost. Good envelopes, attractively printed, cost little more than poor ones."

The Atlanta Envelope Company is one of Atlanta's "real old" business establishments, having been organized in 1893. However, the company's policy has always been one of aggressive, modern merchandising—so that it now has on its books customers in practically every state in the Union. Mr. Guthman's plant is not content to merely manufacture and sell envelopes. It stresses the making of envelopes that help to sell, and accordingly maintains a department for the designing of better envelopes. This department is glad to make recommendations as to color and type of paper stock to be used for a particular purpose and to assist in the actual designing of envelopes.

Popular Coal Man Wants To Rent Vacant Coal Bins

D. A. Chiles, proprietor of the Chiles Coal Company, announces that he wants to rent all basements and vacant coal bins in and around Atlanta. Mr. Chiles has studied out his plan and believes he can pay good rental for all the coal bin space he can get during May and June.

Mr. Chiles will fill all coal bins with good coal during the next 60 days, paying the householder 25 per cent of what the same coal would cost the first of November. His plan is to sell coal at the usual November price, which is $8, and then allow $2 off for the coal-consumer, allowing him to deliver it during May or June or sell it at his present summer price of $6 for the best coal.

"The proposition is simply this," says Mr. Chiles. "From now until along about September 1 there is only a small amount of coal consumed in private homes, yet the miners must keep going to mine coal enough to meet heavy runs that will come with the first cold weather.

"The coalman is realizing his responsibility more and more every year, and he knows if the miners are not furnished enough work during the summer time and only have work a few months in the year they will quit altogether and follow some other paying trade. Not only does slack time around a mine affect the miner but also means the laying off of several train crews.

"We get hard put for storage room, although we usually carry over 3,000 tons the middle of the summer, and if we can get fuller co-operation between the many householders who have empty coal bins now we will keep more miners and train crews busy during their slack time.

"To sum it all up, the coal miner wants to get in more than one or two days work a week at this time of the year. Railroad men want to keep busy and we have 19 trucks in our yards that we would like to keep busy now so our men will not have to work extra hours in the cold and rainy nights next fall.

"If the prudent business man or average householder will look into buying the winter supply of coal just as a business investment or savings account, he would have to get remarkable returns to equal what he can save by buying the winter supply of coal at summer prices. Where is the investment that will return 25 per cent for the next six months ending November 1?

"Not alone is buying coal now a paying investment to all those who can spare the money, but is a helpful act on their part, for with their winter needs for coal satisfied at least in part now, those able to buy only as dire necessity requires can better be served if the coal man is not importuned by the men of wealth to serve them first should a cold spell come suddenly."

The forehead is human-like while the nose and mouth resemble a bulldog very closely. The calf lived 36 hours and is now in alcohol for preservation.

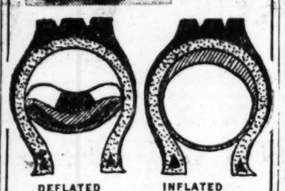
PUNCTURE PROOF TUBES

5 FACTS
1. Do not deflate from punctures in tread.
2. Increase tire mileage.
3. Riding quality equal to thin tubes.
4. Do not creep in tire.
5. Guaranteed for one year against punctures in the tread up to the size of a 16-penny nail.



DEFLATED — Note the tube deflated. There is a layer of fabric cooked in the top of tube along the concaved part. When tube is pumped up this concaved part goes into a convex position. Note tube inflated—the fabric will not let tube stretch on top, thereby forcing thickened rubber together on inside of the tread of tube. Note tube inflated. This closes the puncture by internal pressure when nail is removed. Note tube fully inflated and in position in casing. Note ice pick stuck through Tube and Casing does not go down.

THE UNKISSED BRIDE

By BERTA RUCK

INSTALLMENT I.

THE BOTTOM FALLS OUT OF THE UNIVERSE.

Joy Harrison, as she ran down the stairs of her Chelsea lodging house, was singing:

"What makes the day so short and gay?
Why is the sky so blue?"

and looking like the personification of her Christian name. Joy bubbling up out of her heart and through the soft pink lips that caroled

"You, you, you!"

Joy, lending gloss to her hair, sparkle to her eyes, vitality to the whole of that young body; shapely, rounded, made for delight! Wasn't she 21, radiantly fit, and in love? Wasn't it mid-May. Wasn't it enough to make the girl sing?

"'Sing before noon,'" quoted her stout motherly landlady over the breakfast tray she carried in, "'cry before night,' they say."

"Was I singing, Mrs. Cope? . . . . I didn't know." She had not heard her own treble, true as that of mating linnet, because of another voice. As she sat down to tea and buttered egg that other voice sounded again in her ears. Masculine, lazy, caressive, and what is called "Oxford," it drawled, "Joy, you sweet thing . . . missed me so terribly have you? But now I'm back, wasn't it worth it?"

Above the cheery bustle of London's morning outside her window, above clattering tradesmen's carts, bicycle bells and sparrows, she heard this dream voice of Geoffrey Ford.

Yes; the Geoffrey Ford, the young novelist.

Joy, when first she came to London, had achieved the post of his secretary.

Daily she had hastened to his subtly decorated rooms on the ground floor of that old house in Tite street. She, pad and pencil in hand had perched on the edge of one of his deep armchairs, while he, wearing a futurist silk dressing gown, strode up and down the room, "talking" the last chapters of his novel, "The Trap." (This was afterwards reviewed as a not unwitty contribution to the literature of modern marriage.) She had taken down shorthand notes from the dictation of that lazily fascinating voice. She had grown to know by heart its mannerisms; and when to expect Geoffrey's checked stride, his frown (darkly good looking he was) his musing: "What was I saying? . . . read the last sentence, will you? . . . M'm . . . Begin again——"

Soon enough romance ousted work.

Marvelous Goeffrey had changed the universe for Joy! All she knew he had taught her . . .

Even to her dressing . . .

"That's a good frock, if you don't mind my saying so, Miss Harrison? You always ought to wear colors rather fade. Brings out your vividness . . . Do you know you are one of the few women who are better with nothing on their mouths? Yours looks as if you had taken two petals and curled them back from between your lips. That faint, fox glove pink mustn't be touched!" he had said authoritatively. And then——

Of course. Not long afterwards, either. He had yielded to the lure of that full, soft looking, faintly pink young mouth he had touched, snatched passionately crushed it to his own . . . then stepped back, his pulses beating. Quite startled he had been by this metamorphosis of his pleasant little secretary girl into this warm nymph, ardently flushed, radiant, stormy bosomed under her first real kiss. . . .

Completely losing his head, he had proposed.

To Joy it had seemed incredible.

"You, who wrote 'The Trap?' You, who said: 'Larks can't sing in cages, and if I were cooped up with one woman I couldn't create' "

"When I said that I hadn't met you!"

"You must have thought that before, when you met girls!"

"I did. I admit it! I've had affairs. Even, I've had attachments. It's always been happening. I like them so much, up to a point; but marriage! It's taking a powder in jam. I get through the jam and then there's the powder . . . and I can't face swallowing it!"

"Then——"

"Don't I tell you you're different? O, Joy! You wonderful impulsive little darling, you put the pet into 'impetuous,' you're the cocktail that one thinks is orangeade, but that gets a man's head spinning! That's your power! You're so deliciously sentimentally old world, yet you've twice the pep of any of these bright young jazz ladies! I don't believe in all their dancing and ragging and kissing all over the show. Merely hectic. Makeup over poverty of blood, my dear! You've the real Fragonard sap!" he had vowed. "When you're Mrs. Geoffrey Ford, wife of the brilliant——"

"You'd get tired of me, like you did of the others——"

"Kiss me! There! We'll take the upper flat of this place. Joy! Such luck the people in it are moving out next June. We'll move straight in keeping on these rooms for my working quarters . . . Honeymoon first, in the Italian Alps! . . . . Aren't we going to be gorgeously happy?" had exclaimed that voice which Joy Harrison always heard when she was alone—if you can call it "alone."

Their engagement had meant one month of breath taking bliss. Then three weary months when Joy had been here; Geoffrey away collecting material for his next book, in Tahiti. He was now back in England! (Of course, he had had to go first to his mother's.) Tomorrow, perhaps even this evening, he was coming up to Joy, in town. And—June was next month!

Do you wonder that the thought struck rapture from the girl's heart just as the morning sunshine struck shafts of fire from her ring?

So sunning and smiling, the little room over the Chelsea side street. No Victorian horrors here; no aspidistras. In at the window peeped innocent faces of the marguerites and the pink geraniums which Joy herself had planted and watered. . . . ("One of the things I love about you, Joy," murmured that never absent voice, "is that you're the sort of girl who must have flowers and pretty cushions and covers, and must make things homelike, even in your diggings. Ah well, your bachelor girl days are only a question of—"

The postman's knock . . . Up she sprang. Already Mrs. Cope had brought in the letter.

Yes, it was! His large square grey envelope; his "artistic" curly capitals to "Miss Joy Harrison—"

Joy, still feeling like the personification of her name, took the letter. Opened. Read it. Then, finding that she did not in the least understand what she had read, she drew a long breath and read it carefully and slowly over again.

This time she took it in.

The bottom fell out of the universe.

Just that. Merely that.

. . . . . .

It was some time after that that Joy put aside her breakfast and glanced up at the little clock on the mantelpiece. Yes. Even if the bottom had fallen out of the universe, one still had to go to work she imagined.

Mechanically she put on her coat, pulled on her small felt hat, and her gloves that fitted her like skins except for the bulge of that one sapphire with its circle of brilliants. She caught up her dispatch case, glanced at and left in its corner of the stand her dummy umbrella with the black bulldog handle. No need for that. Perfectly glorious morning.

After all, why shouldn't it be?

Out she came, into pitiless May sunshine.

London was full of golden brightness. Squares full of lilac. Streets full of glossy cars driven by jolly looking men and girls. Shop windows full of little hats that "came out" at you like buds, of faery parasols for Ascot, and of luscious trosseau frocks (trousseau frocks)! Sunshine breeze, high spirits were in the air, and as she passed a barrel organ rattled out: "Who Made the Day Seem Short and Gay? You, you, you!"

On the face of Joy Harrison as she walked quickly westwards there was nothing to show that this horror had happened to her for, although she had turned for a moment deathly white, color had come back. On she sped, meeting or passing other busy looking people—pausing on the curb at the behest of the policeman's large white gloved hand. . . . A glance at a clock over a shop window. She was a bit behind time. Better take the bus. She sat in the corner, all "efficiency secretary looking," as Goeffrey had once called it. Her small gloved hand clutched her smallest neat dispatch case, in which were all the usual things girls do carry in their dispatch cases—including a soft folded parcel of trousseau sewing—and one less usual thing.

THE GUMPS—THE CRISIS

Just at sunset, the patient appeared better than usual—Her eyes became wistful as she listened to the song of the robin in the apple tree beyond the open window of her sick room.—But as the night wore on, her fever arose and a frantic call for the doctor caused him to make a hurried trip to the bedside.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

BEAUTY LOOKS THINGS OVER.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The wise search well e'er they decide
Upon the place they will reside. . . .
—Beauty the Wood Duck.

Peter Rabbit couldn't help thinking that Beauty the Wood Duck was well named. "He is the handsomest bird I have ever seen," thought Peter.

Swimming near Beauty was Mr. Quack the Mallard Duck. He was handsome, with his green head, white collar and chestnut breast. Yes, indeed, Mr. Quack was handsome, but compared with Beauty the Wood Duck he was almost plain. To begin with, Beauty had a wonderful crest. It hung down over the back of his head. His head, including the crest, was green and blue and purple. On each side there was a line of white over the eye, beginning at the base of the bill, and a similar line below. His throat was white and there was a band of it up the side of his head. His breast was a beautiful chestnut. In front of the wings was a white band. His back was a beautiful combination of brown and green and purple. His wings were velvety black with white and purple. His bill was pinkish white marked with red and black. His eyes were red and his feet, when Peter caught a glimpse of them, were orange.

Mrs. Wood Duck had a crest, but not so much of a one as Beauty. She was much more plainly dressed. Her head was grayish. A ring around each eye with a patch behind and her throat were white. Her breast and sides were grayish-brown with little streaks of buff. Her back was brownish with touches of green. Altogether, she was a much plainer small person, but very, very trim indeed. Both she and Beauty were comparatively small ducks.

"Are you going to stay, or are you going on north?" asked Peter as Beauty swam in near.

"Hello, Peter!" exclaimed Beauty, as if he had seen him for the first time. "We don't know what we are going to do. You see, we have just arrived. Perhaps we will look around a bit anyway."

"This is a splendid place," declared Peter enthusiastically. "You won't find any better place farther north."

Mr. and Mrs. Quack chuckled. So did Beauty and Mrs. Wood Duck. "My, how wise we are!" exclaimed

Mrs. Wood Duck had a crest, but not so much of a one as Beauty.

Mr. Quack. "Since when have you known all about the north, Peter Rabbit?"

Peter looked a little confused. "Well, anyway, this is a nice place," said he. "I suppose there are other places just as good, but I don't believe there are any better."

"It is pleasant here," said Beauty. "When Mrs. Wood Duck and I have rested a bit we will look around. You know, we are not like the other members of the duck family. We do not build our nests on the ground."

"What!" cried Peter.

"I said we do not build our nests on the ground," replied Beauty. "We build in a tree and it isn't always easy to find a tree that is suitable. So we have to do quite a lot of looking around. We have to look things over very closely."

"You won't have any trouble finding a tree here," replied Peter. "Just look at them all around."

All the ducks began to chuckle again. Peter didn't understand it. But they offered no explanation and he didn't like to ask what they were chuckling about. Finally Beauty and Mrs. Wood Duck took to their wings and disappeared over the tree tops. Peter was disappointed. He thought they had left Paddy's pond for good. But they hadn't. They were simply looking things over.

Beauty's Boudoir

BY MARIE LA ROQUE.

HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR CHIN'S LOOKS.

Not long ago a beauty expert said that a sure sign of spring was a crop of unattractive chins.

"Women have been bundled up in furs all winter," he said, "and their chins have not been much in evidence out of doors. Spring comes and they put away their furs, and their chins are exposed for all the world to gaze at.

"And what a lot of unattractive chins you do see! Chins that sag and chins that are off color, chins that are wrinkled and chins that stick out. Something ought to be done about it."

Well, there is a lot one can do about it. For one thing, the chin can be systematically exercised, and such exercise will do much to clear up all the defects referred to. Perhaps the best form of exercise is this: Stand or sit with the shoulders back and the head straight up. Then gently but firmly roll the head to the left side, let it roll forward, and then roll it to the right side. Do this half a dozen times, reversing the direction. Then stretch the head back. Do this half a dozen times, gently and slowly, letting the muscles under the chin pull and contract.

What Your Nose Tells: The straight, short and sometimes rather thick nose is said to belong to many women of the type that make excellent housewives and mothers.

This week's beauty help gives some new shampooing ideas. Now that warmer weather is here, and hot weather is in sight, hair cleanliness becomes of even greater importance than it is in winter, and I am sure you will find this circular helpful. The Mirror of the Mode

BY MARY MARSHALL

The handbag should never be given a focal place in the ensemble. This is a rule set for themselves by many well-dressed women and to follow it is to play safe. There are times when a beautiful handbag of the finest quality may be the most conspicuous of the accessories, but usually it should play a secondary role in the dress scheme.

It is for this reason that bags of various beige, gray and grege and natural tones are so much in demand among well-dressed women. Snakeskin bags of grayish beige have enjoyed extremely good reputation of late. Good quality pigskin bags go well with tailored and sports ensembles of beige woolens.

With green or blue cloth or silk costumes one may carry a bag of suede leather of color to match.

Black handbags go well with black or with black and beige scheme. Tan leather is also very good at the present time.

Inconspicuousness is a rule that applies not only to color and material but also to shape. A freak type of bag, no matter of how good materials, may ruin the entire effect of a costume.

Pouches and envelopes divide the honors, and bags of medium size or fairly small size are preferred this season to the very roomy sort that look as if they might do duty as overnight bags.

The bag shown at the top is of green suede with silver metal handle and clasp combined. Next to this is a black calfskin bag with modernist metal clasp, then a bag of tan leather with interesting handle and amber ball. This bag opens at the bottom. The large bag shown below at the left is of brown antelope with wooden mounting and the small evening purse at the right is of silver and gold brocade.

The very short dresses now worn by little girls make the short French type of drawers more convenient and comfortable than the old-time bloomers of knee-length drawers. This week's Help for the Home Dressmaker gives a diagram pattern for drawers of this sort that may be altered to suit any size child. If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I will gladly send you a copy of this circular. Address, Mary Marshall, care The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Your Home and You

BY BETSY CALLISTER.

The skin of a sound piece of fruit acts as a perfect protection against the intrusion of bacteria and dirt. The fruit within a sound orange skin is every bit as securely protected as the milk within a sealed bottle of certified milk. But if we want to take advantage of nature's perfect sealing we should wash fruit carefully before cutting into it. Grapefruit, oranges and lemons should all be washed most thoroughly before they are cut.

Apples, plums, peaches and such fruit may be eaten with comparative impunity with the skins on, if gathered directly from the tree, but if they have been bought in market then it is best to remove the skin—or at least wash it very thoroughly. Fruit picked fresh from trees is harmless enough providing the trees are not exposed to the dust of the road. Also make sure that trees have not been sprayed for pests or disease after the fruit has formed. The substances used for such spraying have been known to cause real harm.

Berries should be bought as fresh and free from dust as possible, because if they are really contaminated the sort of washing that is possible would not make them perfectly fit for food. Therefore select berries that have not been exposed to the dust and get them as soon after the crate has been opened as possible.

Berries should be washed thoroughly to rid them of sand if not actual dirt. This should be done before they are hulled, and may be well done by putting them in a large colander and then letting cold water run through them. It should run through for some time in order to make them really clean.

A quick dipping into very hot water removes dirt more quickly than cold water and peaches, plums and many other fruits may be dipped in this way without impairing flavor or appearance. They should be drained and cooled at once.

Twelve cooling fruit-juice beverages are described in this week's Housewife's Circular—several are very new and all are delicious. If you would like a copy of this circular, please send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I will send it to you at once.

Costly Bite.

Providence, R. I., April 28.—(United News.)—Impatient, Clarence Carlin went to the home of George Toste and demanded payment of a bill. Enraged, Toste bit off Carlin's left ear. Sympathetic, a jury awarded Carlin $2,800 damages.

ANTI-RELIGIOUS MOVE IS STARTED IN SOVIET RUSSIA

Moscow, April 28.—(United News.)—Religious communities in soviet Russia must register with the government within one year or be suppressed as outlaw organizations, according to a decree published here today.

Russians have a right to assemble for religious purposes under terms of the decree, but social and other outside activities must be abandoned.

Atheist elements in Moscow, Leningrad and other industrial centers of Russia are preparing for anti-religious parades for the first time since 1923. The demonstrations will be held next week, according to present plans, coincident with Easter week. Mass meetings and carnivals also have been organized.

London, April 28.—(United News.) The drastic nature of the new soviet anti-religious decree makes any form of worship in Russia most difficult, according to advices received from Moscow today.

"Religious communities or groups," says the decree, "must not found mutual aid societies or consumer's co-operative societies or co-operative workshops, nor give any material aid to members, not hold prayer meetings for women, adolescents or children, nor maintain Bible study or sewing circles, nor open lending libraries or reading rooms, nor give medical advice or aid."

The decree also forbids organization of excursions or building of children's playgrounds. No books, other than those used for Divine service, may be kept in the church or Bible room.

A religious community is defined as a localized unit of at least 20 persons eight years old or more. A religious group is a similar body of 20 adults.

The object of the decree is to prevent creation of large religious communities and to confine worship to a restricted number of individuals, part of an intense anti-religion campaign.

TWO MEN FOUND WITH THROATS CUT IN GOTHAM BAR

New York, April 28.—(AP)—Two men were found slain totday in a speakeasy in the rear of a furniture store in East Thirty-second street. Their throats had been cut.

The body of Thomas Colley, a former convict, who conducted the place, was found behind the counter which was used as a bar, and that of John Collins, a crippled handyman, was lying on a cot in the other end of the room. On the floor were a breadknife and a handsaw, both bloodstained, and beside Collins' body police found a large pair of scissors.

An assistant medical examiner who performed an autopsy said both men had died of stab wounds in the throat. Doctors said it would have been almost impossible for the two men to have wounded each other so severely.

Police said Colley also was known as John Shields and had served terms in Elmira reformatory and Sing Sing prison for robbery, grand larceny and burglary. He was 54 and police said he had been sentenced to a total of 31 years during his criminal career. Collins was about 60.

JAMES B. OTIS DIES OF SELF-INFLICTED GUNSHOT WOUND

New Orleans, April 28.—(AP)—James B. Otis, prominent business man here, died today as the result of admittedly self-administered poison and a shot gun wound yesterday. He also set fire to his office before attempting suicide, he told hospital attendants.

Otis was found in a critical condition in the office of the J. S. Otis Mahogany Company, Inc., yesterday afternoon after persons living nearby had been attracted to the place and smashed a door to gain entrance.

Otis was said by those first to the scene to have begged them to let him doe.

Financial troubles were considered by the police as the reason for his act.

'LEAKS' IN FRUIT FLY BAN INVESTIGATED

Inspectors Active on 241-Mile State Line.

Valdosta, Ga., April 28.—(Special.) Reported "leaks" in the quarantine along the Georgia state line against the Mediterranean fruit fly caused inspectors from this city to hurry out along the line yesterday to make investigations.

Reports of trucks loaded with contraband citrus fruit in bulk trying to crash the quarantine line and make entry into the state came from several places and all of these are being investigated carefully.

As rapidly as uninspected fruit is caught crossing the quarantine line it is confiscated. No action looking toward punishment, in addition to seizure, has been determined by quarantine officials.

Quarantine guards of the state board of entomology who are now covering the 241-mile state line report that they are receiving splendid cooperation from a large number of people, and this is adding materially to the efficiency of the quarantine.

The guards are stationed at all highways crossing the state line, where there are openings in the state "tick" fence, the fence making the quarantine effectual at all other places without guards. However, the fence line is constantly patrolled by tick eradication rangers who see to it that no person cuts the fence for any purpose. In this way the two forces of the state are working together in a most effective manner, although each is intent only upon its own duties.

Indian Mounds Found at Macon To Be Explored

Macon, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—M. W. Stirling, chief of the American bureau of ethnology, will arrive here Monday afternoon to confer with local Boy Scout officials with reference to exploring or preserving the Indian mounds in East Macon.

When city workmen dug into one of the mounds several weeks ago they uncovered beads, bones and relics. Hundreds of children continued the digging until stopped by city authorities. Then the scout officials communicated with the Smithsonian institute in Washington and asked that some one be sent here to investigate the mounds.

GEORGIA MARBLE PICKED FOR TWO LARGE PROJECTS

The Livingston Memorial at Detroit, and the group of buildings that will comprise the new Ford Museum at Dearborn, Mich., are two of the latest jobs of national importance that will be constructed of Georgia marble, it is announced.

The Livingston Memorial will be located at Belle Isle, on the lake front at Detroit. It will be constructed in the form of a lighthouse, and will be built of white Georgia marble. Alfred Kahn is the architect and Gallagher & Fleming are the contractors.

Georgia Marble will be used for the trim of the group of buildings that will comprise the new Ford Museum soon to be erected at Dearborn, Mich. These buildings will house Ford's collection of early American relics and antiques, and also some of the original works of Thomas Edison. Robert O. Derrick is the architect, and Alfred A. Albrect Company, Detroit, are the architects.

The Georgia marble used in these jobs will run to over a quarter of a million dollars. They were sold through the Cleveland office of the Georgia Marble Company, in charge of Nathan Seigel, formerly of Atlanta.

He is survived by his widow, a step-daughter and five step-sons.

Police recalled today that about two years ago Ryan had attempted suicide by inhaling illuminating gas, but firemen resuscitated him.

Jumps From Bed, Gas Presses Heart

"I had stomach gas so bad I had to get up nights because of the pressure on my heart. I used Adlerika and have been entirely relieved."—R. F. Krueger.

Adlerika, a simple glycerin, buckthorn bark, saline compound, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness.

Try this simple proof: Take any medicine which acts on lower bowel only—most laxatives do. After your bowels have moved, take Adlerika and in a short time you will be astonished at how much MORE sour, old matter and GAS is brought out!

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika checks the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice, I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated."

Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel! Just ONE spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. At leading druggists. Send for FREE checkerboard. ADLERIKA, Dept. H-37, St. Paul, Minn.—(adv.)

Tech and Georgia Baseball Teams Clash Friday and Saturday

CRACKERS BATTER BEARS FOR 8-0 WIN

TECH, GEORGIA MIX 7 TIMES DURING WEEK

Baseball Games at Spiller Field To Feature Big Week.

By Herb Clark.

Tech and Georgia, rivals since the beginning of anything, will open a warfare on Friday afternoon which will see the White and Gold of Tech and the Red and Black of Georgia borne into battle on five different fronts.

The shock troops will go into battle on Spiller field in a pair of ball games on Friday and Saturday afternoons, while various minor clashes will be staged on the golf links, the track, the lacrosse field, and swimming pool.

The two schools will clash in five sports, ranging from baseball to swimming and they will meet on seven distinct occasions during the week. It's going to be a large week for the collegians and their followers.

Baseball will occupy the spotlight for the majority of the fans. The Jackets, facing South Carolina's Gamecocks in two games at the Flats on Wednesday and Thursday as a preliminary to the struggles booked for Friday and Saturday with the Bulldogs.

Tech's diamond crew has gone through one of its most disastrous seasons in years at the Flats this spring. The Jackets entered the conference lists with a poor record in extra games and proceeded to drop contests right and left, having played two-thirds of their schedule off with but five victories in 12 games.

GEORGIA FAVORED.

The Bulldogs are on the books to win with little difficulty. A strong pitching staff is the mainstay of the Athens team, and that cannot be matched by Clay, whose hurlers have proved the fly in the ointment. Clay has several tossers who should be able to pitch effective ball, but they have not come through to date.

Georgia, on the other hand, has a mound staff which is capable of holding the opposition at bay and does just that.

The Tech pitchers seem to be reaching something approaching form and it may be that with some airtight support they will be able to turn the Georgians back. The Jackets have always been able to hit and have not left many men on base in their previous games. Mizell has crashed through with the willow and has had his best season, though Parham, Terrell and Smith have shown signs of weakening. If this crew will once hit in unison, the worst pitching in the world will not be much of a handicap, since the way to win ball games is to score runs and "Murderers Row" is able to push over plenty of tallies when its members are right.

TWO LACROSSE GAMES.

Lacrosse will battle with baseball for the attention of the fans. Two games are scheduled for Friday and Saturday at Grant field. The two teams met two weeks ago at Athens, and managed to split the series there. Since that time the Jackets have invaded the camps of the outstanding teams of the north. To date they have played Maryland's Old Liners and the Midshipmen of the navy, losing both by counts of 14-0. They should have learned some new tricks on the jaunt, however, and be well-prepared for the attack of the Bulldogs who spent the past week-end at Columbus in taking two games from the Soldiers at Fort Benning.

A track meet and a golf match are scheduled for Athens on Saturday afternoon. The Bulldog track squad seems to have a dangerous edge on the Jackets, who are without the strength of Ed Hamm, their ace. The Athenians had little trouble in winning the state meet at Emory last Monday, and showed better than the Jackets in the southern relays at Grant field. The Jackets also lost to North Carolina's Tarheels at the Flats by a large margin.

Golf is the only sport in which the Jackets look good in this week of battles. The Engineers didn't show so well in the medal play at Emory Monday, but have won five of seven matches during their season, and hope to close with a victory over the Bulldogs Saturday.

The fifth fray between the two schools will be a swimming meet at the A. A. C. pool Saturday night in which the two freshman squads will battle. The Junior Jackets took the Georgia Rats into camp at Athens last Saturday, and hope to repeat here.

Tarheels in Lead of Tri-State Loop

Richmond, Va., April 28.—(AP)—Winning two ten-inning games last week to boost its record to eight wins and no defeats, the University of North Carolina baseball nine has practically won the Tri-State league pennant of the Southern conference.

This week North Carolina State makes a swing in Maryland and Virginia, and will play Maryland on Monday, University of Virginia on Tuesday, Virginia Military Institute on Wednesday; Washington and Lee on Thursday and Virginia Polytechnic Institute on Friday. The University of Virginia is scheduled to play Maryland on the latter's grounds on Saturday.

The Tri-State league season extends through May 20.

Wow!!! What was Old Man Roberson using on the ball yesterday at Mobile? Was he pinching it? Or was he pushing it? Probably the latter.

Old Man John Henry has been protesting quietly all along that he felt better this spring than he has felt in some time; he just needed a little more warm weather, that was all. When he let the Bears down with five hits, he let the secret out.

If John Henry is all set for a summer's campaign, it means that Colonel Spiller has exactly one more pitcher than he thought for.

DANFORTH'S MISDEMEANOR.

All the waving of arms that followed the discovery of baseballs that apparently had been given special treatment by Dave Danforth in the Pel game Friday may be misleading.

Do not imagine that Cousin Dave would be in any danger of being expelled from the game for defacing the balls. Such tricks of the trade are misdemeanors and subject to fines or suspensions. Roughening or spotting baseballs may be classed with sassing the umpire or stealing second with bases loaded. It is not a major crime such as selling a ball game or betting on the opposition.

Danforth merely is suspected of violating a pitching rule. So far he is innocent.

And probably will be this time next year. When the umpires who worked the game failed to observe anything unusual in six baseballs being scarred in the same place in the same manner, a belated shipment of those balls to the league headquarters is like filing a motion for a new trial after the supreme court upholds the decision of the trial judge.

A BEWILDERING DERBY.

Confidential advices from Louisville where my clockers have been rising at 3 a. m. to catch the night blooming plants as they came out for their secret workouts indicate that the two-horse entry of "Bath House John" Coughlin—Rougish Eye and Karl Eitel—are causing the backers of winter favorites loss of sleep and daily misery.

This pair of colts, always regarded as possibilities, look like probabilities, I am told.

On the other hand, a dusky railbird in Lexington writes: "Don't pay no attenshun to what Clyde Van Deusen done here Thursday, Mr. Danforth, for he run a spanking good race behind Blue Larkspur and for the first time out as a three-year-old he done mighty good. He has got the speed and will be ready at the Downs."

And finally the following:

EDWARD DANFORTH

PUT YOUR ROLL ON BLUE LARKSPUR FOR THE DERBY

MISS ABBIE

Now with that evidence in hand, what is an exiled Kentuckian to do? I have a profound respect for Miss Abbie's judgment, by the way. About this time in the spring of 1925 she sent me Captain Hal—and Hal ran second to Flying Ebony by a few jumps.

Alexander Seeks To Equal Record

Cardinal Hurler, Entering 19th Season, Wants To Surpass 21 Seasons of Johnson.

By Ralph McGill.

There is still a great deal of glamor about old Pete Alexander. There always was, but in 1926 he clothed himself in the cloakings of the great and that glamor will cling about him forever.

It was in that 1926 series that Grover Cleveland Alexander, having done his share, was awakened in the bull pen where he lay asleep and sent out to save the day. The enemy was at the gates. Old Pete shuffled out, his cap askew, and repelled the Yankees in as drastic a moment as the annual championship series have seen.

Old Pete belongs to that dying, muchly-legislated-against race who believe in being frank about their drinking. Old Pete can take it or leave it alone. He takes it. It was that which caused him to be transferred by the Chicago Cubs, Joe McCarthy being interested in ethics. Rogers Hornsby took him.

And so Old Pete is setting out on his nineteenth season. He would like to equal or surpass the record set by Walter Johnson, The Big Train, who sped down the baseball rails for 21 seasons.

JOHNSON IN 1907.

It was in 1907 that Walter Johnson entered major league competition. Old Pete came along in 1911. Their careers ran side by side for years. They are the greatest righthanders the game has seen since Christy Mathewson. Johnson baffled American league batters for 21 years. In the National league Old Pete has gone along for 18 years.

The three extra years give Johnson an edge in the totals, but Old Pete is pushing him closely. They have been pitching for one-third of the allotted span of life. The Big Train is through. Old Pete is trying to equal the record. He intends to go

Dixie Pigeon Sets New Mark

"Old 340," a Dixie Loft pigeon, averaging 53 miles per hour for the 213-mile course from Valdosta to Atlanta, won the Atlanta Homing Pigeon Club's race yesterday to set a new club record with the sensational time of 1523.742 yards per minute, in spite of hard rains throughout almost the entire course. W. J. Stoddard held the previous record at 1,246 yards per minute.

BARONS, PELS TOP LEAGUE DURING WEEK

Southern Association Teams Pound Out 521 Hits in 28 Games.

Memphis, Tenn., April 28.—(A.P.)—Southern association players found their batting eyes during the past week and in the 28 games including those today, crashed out 521 hits, which, coupled with 82 errors, were good for 283 runs.

The league leader, Birmingham, and New Orleans, tied with Memphis for second place in the standing, led the parade with five victories and two defeats each in seven games.

With 79 safe blows, the Barons led the loop in hits as well as in allowing the opposition the fewest scores, 26. Memphis' 47 runs were the best record in that department, three more than were made by the Barons, and 12 more than gathered by the Pelicans.

Afield, the Mobile Bears, occupants of the cellar in the ranking, with a single victory in seven contests, took honors with only seven bobbles. The Bruins lacked punch in scoring and were last in that department with 26 markers. Nashville took the consolation prize in fielding with a grand total of 13 errors.

Little Rock was the most lenient team, giving up 47 runs to opponents.

Of the 25 home runs banged out by the eight teams, Memphis and Nashville vied for honors with six each. The Barons and Little Rock were next best with five each.

Allington, of Memphis, was the only player to blast two homers.

Those making single four-base clouts were: Hamilton, McNair, Prothro and Ferrell, Memphis; Partridge, Miner, Holt, Brown, Kreuge and Cortazzo, Nashville; Sheehan, Atlanta; Weis, Blac, Cooper, Sturdy and Pickering, Birmingham; Moore and Pyle, Chattanooga, and Oliver Anderson, Moon, Whitney and Rose, Little Rock.

The following table shows the number of games each team has played during the past week, including today, those won and lost and the runs, hits, errors, opponents' runs and home runs:

Interest Aroused Over Mat Bout

A new interest quickly developed among Atlanta wrestling fans with the announcement Sunday that Paul Jones, the youthful Texas grappler, would clash with Jimmy Londos, one of the leading contenders for the mat title, here Friday night on a card sponsored by Matchmaker Earl McGrory.

It is the first high priced card Atlanta fans have been afforded in several months, and, according to the matchmaker, the auditorium annex likely will be packed for the match. Jones never has failed to attract hundreds of fans here when he performs, and, with the drawing power of Londos added, the turnstiles likely will click off an attendance numbering well into four figures. At least, that is the expectation of Matchmaker McGrory.

Jones battled here only a few days ago, and showed to a splendid crowd of Atlantans that he had learned quite a bit about the game since his last appearance here. In Londos, Jones probably meets the toughest grappler he has ever encountered in an Atlanta ring. It will be a duel between the front headlock, and the scissors, Londos featuring the headlock and Jones the scissors. Either of the holds is deadly.

The auditorium annex now is undergoing renovations. McGrory is having the seats raised and re-arranged so that each customer might have a clear view of what happens in the ring. At the same time, the matchmaker is seeking to complete his program.

Tickets for the bout will be placed on sale Wednesday morning at Arnold Soda Company, located at Luckie and Broad, and Candler Building Soda Company.

Boxers Reach Town For Tuesday Fight

Abelson Stresses Hard Work for Pugilists in Goodrich-Avera Mill at Auditorium.

With all fighters on hand except Willie Ptomey, Max Abelson, matchmaker, is seeing to it that all put in plenty of time training for their bouts here Tuesday night when Ted Goodrich and Larry Avera meet in the main bout to settle the much-disputed decision awarded Goodrich in their last fight.

Ptomey, who is boxing instructor at the University of Georgia, will arrive Tuesday morning for his bout with Wilson. Being ring boss at the university, he works out daily and will be ready to answer the bell Tuesday night.

Goodrich and Avera will meet in the windup of a good card. The first preliminary will start promptly at 8:30 o'clock. As an added attraction Abelson has obtained the services of Young Stribling for his show. The heavyweight title contender will referee the main bout.

Roberson Holds Bears to Five Hits

Crackers Pound Out 12 in Victory; Three-Game Losing Streak Broken.

Mobile, Ala., April 28.—Rube Roberson, who has pitched baseball in this league for so many years that the oldest inhabitant has almost forgotten when he started, left-handed the Mobile Bears into submission Sunday afternoon, his team, the Crackers, taking the first game of the series of four that they play at Hartwell field, 8 to 0. The Bears looked woefully bad against the veteran forkhander, collecting just five hits. The plight of the local club was a tough one, only one runner reaching third base on Rube. During the first four innings that he worked Roberson held the Bears to one hit.

Ernie Koob, left-hander, started the pitching for the Mobile club and they made five hits, gathered off the former colonel, coupled with a hit batsman and two sacrifices count for four runs. One of the blows that the Georgians turned in was a triple—Johnny Jones was the one—with two runners on the paths.

Guy Morton succeeded Koob after the latter gave way to "Pinch Hitter" Hoffman and he lasted one inning, an infield hit and a home run by Sheehan adding two more markers to the Cracker's collection.

Merle Settlemire, another left-hander on the staff of Manager Hulswitt, followed Morton to the pitching hump. Merle suffered from wildness and hit three batters with the ball during the four cycles that he worked. The Crackers added five hits to the hit batters and scored twice off the former Boston Red Sox hurler.

CRAX GET JUMP.

The Crackers scored at the jump of the game. Archdeacon pumped a single into short left field. Sheehan sacrificed Archdeacon to second and Izzy Rosenfeld, whose hitting was a big factor in the contest, scored Archdeacon with a single to right.

The Bears had a runner on second in their first when Rutherford singled advanced on an infield out, but this chance was blown when Haley and Robinson made a fast play on Susko's hopper.

Kobb hurled perfectly after the first round until the fourth when the Crackers renewed their batting attack on him and scored three runs and finished Ernie. Rosenfeld hit a single to right and Haley sacrificed. After Susko took care of Brainerd's foul fly Koob hit Bill Marriott, former Bear, with the ball. Johnny Jones then wrecked the Bears with a triple to far left field that scored Rosenfeld and Marriott. Jones scored when Lopez singled sharply to left.

Two runs were scored by the Crackers in the fifth after Guy Morton took the ridge. Archdeacon outran an infield hit near first and scored when Sheehan drove a vicious rap over Stuvengen's head to the right-field corner for a home run, the ball hopping the short fence out of sight of the umpires.

OUT OF TROUBLE.

The Bears looked like they were going to escape a whitewashing in the fifth, but Old Rube pitched himself out of trouble. Stuvengen and Lenihan singled in succession with one down and when Mackey forced Lenihan, Jones to Sheehan, Stuvengen reached third. "Dutch" Hoffman was sent in to bat for Morton and fanned.

A hit batsman and two singles gave the Crackers a run in the seventh. Settlemire planted the ball in the ribs of Archdeacon. When Sheehan hit a safety to center Archdeacon trotted to third and he scored when Rosenfeld hit safe for the third time in the game, a base-hit to left.

Clabaugh doubled after one man was out in Mobile's part of the seventh, but Stuvengen and Lenihan went out on long drives to Rosenfeld in deep left. On the last catch Rosy made a nice play.

Atlanta continued scoring in the ninth. Roberson added glory to his well-pitched game with a single to left field, and reached second when Archdeacon rolled to Stuvengen. Sheehan was hit by a pitched ball, making the third hit batsman for Settlemire. Frank Haley, Cracker first-sacker drove out a terrific single to center to score Roberson.

The Crackers not only hit well today, but they supported Roberson with some snappy work.

CHICAGO CUBS SET HOT PACE

Bruins Win Four of Games for Best National Record.

By William J. Chipman,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, April 28.—(AP)—Teams of which much is expected in the major league pennant races failed to set any worlds on fire in the week ending last night, but the Chicago Cubs did emerge from the melee with a record of four victories and two defeats, good going in any company and the best in the National for the seven-day period. The Detroit Tigers made the best interleague showing with five victories and two defeats, but the Tigers were engaged mainly in inconsequential warfare.

The Athletics and the Browns, each with three victories in five starts, pressed Detroit in the American, and the A's barely missed making it four out of five. After Jack Quinn avenged himself on Friday for an unfortunate defeat at the Yankee stadium 10 days ago, the old Yankee got into operation in time to snatch yesterday's decision from Bob Grove and the henchmen of Mr. Mack.

Of the National league favorites, the Cardinals got only an even break in six games, but showed by their demeanor that it will be unwise to rate them on their last world series showing. A little pitching from Old Alex could easily keep the Red Birds in the midst of the Giant-Cub brawl, and the venerable right-hander already has shown more than a little improvement over his 1928 form. Cardinal chances hinge largely on whether Alex can continue to win.

GIANTS MIRED.

Taking several unexpected taps on the chin from the supposedly peaceable Phillies and Braves at the Polo Grounds, the Giants bogged down into a tie with the Pirates for the week's worst record in either circuit. And the Buccaneers had nobody to contend with but the irrepressible Cubs for most of the time. McGraw and Bush each showed one victory against three defeats.

The Tigers not only topped both leagues in games won and lost for the week, but also gained the interleague title in offensive play. The Bengals amassed 49 runs on 89 hits, seven of which were home runs. This was the best mark for circuit drivers in either loop. With Ruth starting slowly, the Yankees collected only one homer—by Gehrig on Saturday.

The Cubs led the National league on offense with 54 runs and 68 hits, but the Giants took home run honors with five. The lowly Robins pressed hard with four circuit smacks.

ERRORLESS SENATORS.

All of the big league clubs have had a bad time in the field, with the exception of the Washington Senators and one or two other American league entries. The Senators erred not at all. The best record in the National was that of Boston, which was guilty of four misplays. Cleveland made the greatest number of slip-ups in the American, 15, while the Reds corralled this doubtful honor in the National with eight.

The Boston Red Sox allowed their opposition only 15 runs, the best American league mark, but the Braves and Giants, each with a deficit of 14 runs against, shared interleague supremacy.

Last week's record for major league clubs of games won and lost, runs, hits, errors, opponent's runs and home runs follows:

3 Leading Clubs In American Win

Browns, Athletics, Yankees Victorious; Babe Ruth Gets Another Homer.

Three leading clubs in the American league—Browns, Athletics and Yankees—won Sunday.

The Browns overcame a three-run handicap to beat the Detroit Tigers, 6 to 3. Stewart, who relieved Coffman after the latter had given up thre runs in the first inning, held the Tigers to two hits for the balance of the game.

The Athletics beat the Red Sox, 7 to 3, before a crowd of 20,000 which saw the first Sunday professional baseball game ever played in Boston. Bing Miller and Jimy Dykes hit home runs.

Babe Ruth's second home run of the season and a six-run rally in the fifth inning enabled the Yankees to defeat Washington, 7 to 2. White Hoyt pitched his third victory of the season.

Grady Adkins held the Indians to four hits and the White Sox beat Cleveland, 2 to 1. Kamm's double and Hoffman's single won the game.

OLD ALEX. SEEKS RECORD

on for four more years when this present season is done.

THE TOTALS.

The grand totals, showing Old Pete's efforts in the race with Johnson, follow:

	John'n.	Alex'r
Total innings pitched	5,924	5,009
Total pitching years	21	18
Total games worked in	802	665
Total games won	414	364
Total games lost	276	197
Total strikeouts	3,497	2,145
Total bases on balls	1,450	932
Total hits allowed	4,924	4,655

Averaging that to seasons one finds that Johnson appeared in 38 games a year and Alexander 37. That includes appearances as a relief pitcher as well as a starter. In 1914 and 1912 the iron arm of Johnson never tired. He was in 51 ball games that one season, an almost unprecedented number. In 1912 he was in 50 ball games. Old Pete was in 49 games in 1915 and 48 in 1911. He appears in a comparatively small number of games now, but he is still out there winning ball games.

Taking all the innings pitched and reducing them to nine-inning games, it develops that Johnson pitched 658 full games with Old Pete working 557 through the 928 season.

AVERAGE 20 WINS.

The victories show that they went along very much together. Johnson averaged 20 victories a year through his 21 seasons. Old Pete averaged 20 a year through his 18 seasons. He won 16 in 1928.

Johnson struck out more. Johnson had a ball that was much like the one which David Danforth, the New Orleans pitcher, used in beating the Crackers here last Friday. It was natural with him. It sailed up as it reached the batter. There was never any charge that Johnson was "doctoring" the ball. Any fast ball pitcher can make the ball sail. He never fooled with the old trick pitches even when they were legal. He didn't have to.

Here are additional figures which show how the two greatest right-handers went along winning games, and how Old Pete stuck close to the task of equaling Walter Johnson's record:

	John'n.	Alex'r
Years in baseball	21	18
Total games worked in per season	38	37
Total nine-inning games per season	31	31
Average defeats per season	13	11

Braves Beat Robins To Gain Full Game

Reds Win Weird Contest From Chicago; Hack Wilson Hits 2 Homers.

A full game in the National league race was gained by the Braves Sunday by beating the Brooklyn Robins, while the Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals lost.

Percy Lee Jones kept Brooklyn's hits scattered and the Braves defeated the Robins, 5 to 2, in a six-inning game halted by rain.

Cincinnati won from the Cubs in a weird game, 17 to 12. Hack Wilson hit two home runs. Nine Reds batted in the first and fifth and eleven in the third. Thirteen Cubs batted in the fifth, when Chicago scored eight runs. Schulte, Chicago catcher, was spiked in the left foot and carried from the field, marking the fourth Cub catcher who is disabled.

Jess Petty won his first game of the year for his new team, pitching the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-to-2 victory over the Cardinals.

The New York Giants hammered out an 8-to-2 win over the Phillies. Rain prevented the scheduled second game.

Black Crackers Play Red Sox

Atlanta's Black Crackers will make their first home stand this afternoon when they take over Spiller's dell for a series with the Cuban Red Sox. The game will be called at 3:30.

The Black Crackers have just returned from a road trip into Florida on which they played 22 games, winning 12 with good pitching and a powerful scoring punch.

Either Williamson or Lamar is slated to take the mound for the home hopes, with Shepard on the receiving end. Tony or McFaulen will be at first, Hayer will guard the keystone sack, aided by Enlis at shortstop, while Mitchell will have the hot corner in his care. Muff, Clark, and Carnelous will be in the outer pastures.

BOXERS REACH TOWN FOR GO

feels that he has lined up the best possible string of fights for his Tuesday night show, and expects a capacity house.

Nothing need be said regarding the ability of Goodrich and Avera. They are both known here as well as over the south as clever fighters and boys who can feed one plenty of knuckles.

While Wilson, who meets Ptomey in the ten-round semi-windup, is not known here, he comes to Atlanta with an impressive record in the ring. He holds decisions and knockouts over many of the leading fighters of the south and middle west. He is also rated as a deadly puncher, having knocked out such boys as Earl Hudson, one of Florida's leading mitt slingers, in a recent bout. Other good boys have fallen before his right hook.

Abelson stated that this bout will rival the main event in action, as both Wilson and Ptomey are the same type of fighters.

Advance sale of tickets indicates that a large house will witness the bouts, and, as Stribling has definitely agreed to act as third man in the ring in the main go, plenty of people can be expected to attend the show.

Tickets for the bout are on sale at the Wilmot hotel, Arnold Soda Company and the Candler building cigar store.

Kelly Returned.

Memphis, Tenn., April 28.—(AP)—Thomas R. Watkins, president of the Memphis Southern Association ball club, announced today that Harry Kelly, Chickasaw right hander, sold conditionally to the New York Giants had been released and would return to the Chicks. Kelly pitched for Memphis last year and for Birmingham the year before.

Kantar Wins.

Longchamps, France, April 28.—(AP)—Kantar, one of the best of last year's three-year-olds, made his start as a four-year-old today by winning the Biennial Stakes, feature of today's card. Against a crack field, Kantar showed fine speed to win by two lengths with Baron Edouard De Rothschild's Bubbles second and Coligny third. The winner was ridden admirably by the English jockey, Arthur Esling. Kantar was at even money in the betting.

Revamped Infield Showing Up Well

Lazerri and Pennock Get Well, Lighten Worries of Manager Huggins.

By George Moriarty,
Big League Umpire.

New York, April 28.—So far as can be determined after the first couple of weeks of action, the playing skill and the morale of the champion New York Yankees may be said to be on the same high morale which distinguished the club before and during the world series last fall. This is despite the fact that Manager Huggins has been obliged to revamp the left wing of the infield.

Koenig has taken Joe Dugan's place at third, and bids fair to demonstrate that such performers as Kamm, Lindstrom and Traynor have serious competition for highest honors. Durocher scampers all over the shortstop territory without wasting energy, and if he hits well at all he should keep the reporters busy describing his spectacular fielding.

The one noticeable feature about the Yankees is that they cannot be classed as a worried ball club. Rumors from spring training quarters gave a contrasting impression, due, of course, to the uncertain outlook concerning Pennock and Lazzeri. The arms of these stars have caused more "ifs" than baseball ever knew before.

LAZZERI FLASHES.

All my doubts about Lazzeri's arm were removed at Boston when I saw Lazzeri co-operate with Shortstop Durocher in completing a lightning double play which retired the side and eased the Yankees out of an embarrassing situation.

Later, chatting about his arm, Lazzeri said: "I don't think about it any more, because it's as good as ever. My trouble was properly diagnosed as contracted shoulder muscles due to an injury in sliding. Several treatments of 'stretching' and massaginz brought it back."

Herb Pennock, vital left-handed spoke in the Yankee pitching wheel, was just as optimistic about his wing. "My old fear in starting is the cold weather," said Pennock. "I am anxious to have Old Sol put on his perspiration act, so I may go regularly to the firing line. I feel that my arm is O. K. again. You see, my trouble didn't come from injury, and because of that I feel that it has disappeared the same way it came, without warning."

The favorable element in Pennock's odd case is that he never was a "bear-down" type of pitcher. He always impresses me with the idea that pitching against any club is an afternoon's frolic.

PLENTY PLAYERS.

The outstanding contribution to the first week's play is credited to Tris Speaker, manager of the Newark Bears of the International league. With the score 12 to 3 against his charges in a game with Buffalo, Speaker sent the first team to the showers and brought his No. 2 performers into the lineup. Buffalo won, 20 to 6.

Speaker, as a big league manager, probably made more changes in lineups than any other pilot. He often used 15 to 20 players as a matter of resourcefulness when he ran the Cleveland Indians. Having been an integral part of winning clubs in Boston and Cleveland, Speaker was always rated as crafty and aggressive, but his move last week reflected desperation in a desire to win.

With Catchers Hartnett, Gonzales and Grace on the hospital list, the Chicago Cubs, a team rated to have everything, faced the proposition of pressing a third-string rookie, Angley, into service to handle their star mounders. It is a heavy task.

Unless young Angley can show more catching craft than his limited experience warrants, the Cubs' flingers may be obliged to "shake him off" continually on battery signals and give their own signs.

Hole in One Not So Good

Amarillo, Texas, April 28.—(United News.)—To make a hole in one and not have it count is the personification of tragedy, take it from F. L. Bither of this city.

Bither was teeing off on the golf course here when he took a mighty swing at the ball and sliced.

After a long search in the direction of the slice, Bither found the ball resting snugly in the cup, one hole ahead of the tee to which he was supposed to have been shooting.

U. S. Golfers Forget Ryder Defeat and Prepare for Open

England's Hopes Buoyed by Victory

America Sends Large Field to Compete at Muirfield on May 6.

London, April 28.—(A.P.)—With the Ryder cup matches completed and a surprising English victory as the net result, Britain's golfers turned their attention today to the open championship, starting at Muirfield on May 6.

Encouraged by their success against Walter Hagen and his American Ryder cup team, British devotees of the ancient and honorable game have high hopes of checking the foreign invasion at Muirfield this year. England's greatest golfing prize has gone to America for the last five years and seven times since 1921. The only break in the string of American successes came in 1923 when Arthur Havers nosed out Hagen by a single stroke.

However, buoyed up English hopes have been, there is no disposition to discount the strength of the American contingent of 22 in the open. In addition to the complete Ryder cup squad of Hagen, Horton Smith, Gene Sarazen, Johnny Farrell, Al Espinosa, Al Watrous, Johnny Golden, Ed Dudley, Leo Diegel and Joe Turnesa, the United States will have in the field the professionals, Tommy Armour, MacDonald Smith, Jim Barnes, Bobby Cruickshank and Bill Mehlhorn and the amateurs, George Von Elm, Silas Newon, Joshua Crane, Stewart Sheftal, Max Behr, F. W. Stites and J. Thompson.

DIEGEL FEARED.

Of the Ryder cup members, Diegel appears to be the one most to be feared by England. The Canadian open and United States Professional champion played superlative golf in the Ryder cup matches especially in his singles encounter with Abe Mitchell, British veteran. In that match Diegel covered the first 18 holes in 65, six under par, and ended the match at the 28th when he was 10 under even fours.

Despite his crushing defeat by Duncan, there will be no disposition on the part of Englishmen to forget that Hagen is in the field. Hagen, the defending champion, has won the open three times and is at his best in a crisis.

As a matter of fact every member of the Ryder cup team as well as the five "independent" pros, Armour, Macdonald Smith, Barnes, Cruickshank and Mehlhorn must be rated as contenders. Among the amateurs, only Von Elm appears especially formidable.

Young Sheftal is making his first appearance in the big event. He won the British boys championship last year and now lives in Paris.

242 ENTRANTS.

All told the open has drawn 242 entrants, with England, the United States, Germany, South Africa, Australia, India, Argentina and the Federated Malay States represented.

Amateurs are outnumbered by nearly 5 to 1 and unless Von Elm or T. P. Perkins, the British amateur titleholder, come through the open championship appears destined to go to a professional. J. H. Taylor, Jim Braid, Harry Vardon and almost all the famous British stars will be there with the exception of Roger Wethered and E. W. E. Holderness.

The big field is to be divided into two sections for the qualifying rounds. One-half of the entrants are to play 18 holes on the Gullan public course on the first day and 18 on the Muirfield course the second day while the other half is playing 18 on the Muirfield course the first day and 18 on the Gullan layout the second day. At the end of these 36 holes, the first 80 players and those tieing for 80th place will compete in 72 holes of medal play on the Muirfield course for the championship.

Americans Laud British for Win In Ryder Play

New York, April 28.—(A.P.)—American golfdom took its trouncing in the Ryder cup matches with good grace. Comment on the British victory, by seven points to five, was restricted in great part to congratulations to England and surprise over the outcome.

At Atlanta, Bobby Jones extended his congratulations for the "splendid victory over the best team we could send."

"Probably in the long run it was a good thing," he added, "and in the open tournament to follow the American members of the Ryder cup team will be on edge and trying hard to recoup their lost prestige."

Jess Sweetser, the 1926 British amateur titleholder, thought it was a "darn good thing though the British probably will take a new lease on life and lick us amateurs when we go over next year."

Findlay S. Douglas, president of the United States Golf Association, said it was a "great victory" but added that he was "not particularly interested in results one way or another. You win one day and lose the next."

Charles H. Sabin, treasurer of the U. S. G. A., admitted it was a "surprising defeat" but "it looks as if the best team won."

Said H. H. Ramsey, vice president of the U. S. G. A.:

"We were finely trounced. Beating us that way, they certainly deserved to win."

Ramsey, however, will be greatly surprised if an American doesn't win the British open.

PELS TIE FOR SECOND PLACE.

New Orleans, April 28.—Ernie Padgett's single to right field with two out and the bases loaded gave the Pelicans a 5-to-4 victory over the league-leading Barons in 10 innings here today. Over 9,000 fans witnessed the hard-fought game, the first of a four-game series.

Both sides had chances to go ahead before the eighth inning, but superb pitching by Belven Beane, of the winners, and "Slim" Love saved the day. As it was, the relief twirlers, Clinton Brown and C. Moore were charged with the victory and defeat, respectively.

By this victory, the Pels are now tied for second place and only half a game from the top.

Errors in the early moments proved costly to the losers.

GRIFFIN AND NIENAUS STARS.

Memphis, Tenn., April 28.—Griffin allowed Nashville only four hits today and Memphis won easily, 9 to 1. Niehaus, Chickasaw first baseman, snapped out of his batting slump by driving out a triple, double and single out of four times up, batting in six runs and tallying once himself. He trinled in the fourth with the bases full.

Until the ninth the Volunteers had made only two hits. Their run was scored in the ninth on a double by Cartasso and a single by Klugman.

Flowers Meets Tanner Tonight

Fight fans who have a predilliction for colored boxers should be pleased by the card to be offered at the Elks Rest on Edgewood avenue tonight, in which Cecil Flowers will face "Texas" Tanner.

Flowers is a brother of the late Tiger Flowers, and has already proven as popular a fighter as his brother. "Texas" is a Macon product who has just returned from a western invasion on which he won 15 bouts out of 17 with some of the best boys of that section. Both lads are in the pink of condition and should put on a good show.

Cowboy Kid and "Straight Eight" Dunn will mix in the semi-windup. "Straight Eight" is hitting with all cylinders and the bout should produce a knockout.

Two other bouts and a battle royal will complete the card. A special section will be reserved for white fans and 8:30 has been set as starting time.

Dixie Handicap Slated Today

New York, April 28.—(A.P.)—One of the most representative fields to go to the barrier on the American turf this season has been named to start tomorrow at the opening of Pimlico, when 19 veteran thoroughbreds battle for the rich $25,000 Dixie Handicap purse.

There will be 12 days of racing at Pimlico, after which the Maryland season will be closed until September 20, when the sport returns to Havre De Grace for the opening of the fall season.

Victorian, recently sold to the Warm stable, of Lexington, Ky., by H. P. Whitney has been made the favorite to take the rich inaugural purse because of his record last year, when he was the leading three-year-old money winner, and his impressive season's debut in the Shenandoah Handicap at Havre De Grace. In thrashing some of the leading horses of the Maryland tracks at Havre, Victorian ran the mile in 1:37 2-5 over a track deadened by heavy rains and then eased up to finish the mile and 70 yards in 1:42 2-5, just two-fifths of a second over the track record.

The Dixie Handicap has been run under various names since 1870, when Preakness led the field to the wire. Sarazen, Mrs. Vanderbilt's ageing gelding, was the only horse to win twice, turning the trick in 1925 and 1926. The next year Mars, the fighting son of Man O'War, galloped to victory over Display and Edisto. Last year Mike Hall, soon to leave on a European invasion, was returned the victor with Scapa Flow getting the place and Sir Harry trailing in third place.

GA.-ALA. LEAGUE OPENS MAY 10

Faster Playing Seen This Year With Player Salary Limit Raised.

Lindale, Ga., April 28.—(Special.) Things are shaping up rapidly for the opening of the Georgia-Alabama baseball league, which date is May 10, and a season of 101 games are to be played.

The same towns as last year, Lindale, Cedartown and Carrollton in the Georgia side with Anniston, Gadsden and Talladega down in Alabama, will make up the Georgia-Alabama combination.

Baseball league headquarters will again be in Cedartown with C. I. Scarborough again as the league's head, with a Cedartown man also as secretary.

Captain H. P. Meikleham, president of the Lindale baseball club, announced positively today that E. R. Moulton, better known as "Slick," coach and athletic director of the Alabama Polytechnic institute, would pilot his club during the 1929 season.

The Georgia-Alabama league is expected to be much faster this year than formerly, as the salary limit has been raised and all towns in the circuit are making better plans than heretofore for baseball and the fans are anxiously awaiting the opening date.

Last year's Lindale men who are expected to return to the Lindale diamond are Alexander and Cartwright, outposts; Burton, Howell, Stanfield, Crowe and Wilkie on the pitching staff and Burton, third base.

Theopolus "Buck" Floyd and Iron S. Rowe, both Lindale men, have been given umpires' contracts in the Georgia-Alabama circuit.

U. S. Pros Consistent, Open Figures Show

By Dick Hawkins.

Squawks about the professional golf trust are being heard from many quarters, just as every year when the select group of gold diggers starts the pilgrimage to England for the open or the Ryder cup matches.

"Why don't they give somebody else a chance?" is the war cry of the dissatisfied who see their favorite left off the Ryder cup team or given the go-by in some other manner.

The same gang does rule the proroost of professionalism but there is a reason for that and a sound reason, albeit a bitter pill for those who boast about the young pros who are coming up to take the power from the old crowd.

Glancing back through the record of the United States open championship for the past eight years I find that the recurrence of certain names is almost monotonous. Looking at just the first 10 finishers each year it is impossible to find any new professional who has come to the top during that period and stayed within the first 10 finishers except Johnny Farrell.

MORNING GLORIES.

Year after year the youngsters burn up the bush leagues in the winter tournaments and sometimes even get close to the top in big time only to drop back under the pressure of prosperity. Billy Burke was one example of this type. Year before last Billy was the sensation of the western and southern meets but did not qualify for the open.

This year the irreconcilables have a new champion in Horton Smith. He promises more than any new champion in the last decade. His game is sound and he has the temperament to go with his game. But he will be facing a difficult task in his climb through the big time. No golfer has ever gone to the top or even near it in his first three big attempts but Gene Sarazen and after that first spurt Gene dropped back to his proper notch.

Names that have appeared in those first 10 each year since 1920 have a sameness that borders on monotony. They include Hagen, Melhorn, Smith, French, Farrell, Barnes, Hutchinson, Espinosa, Brady, Watrous and a few more. Now and then a new name creeps up into the first 10 but those mentioned along with that of Robert Jones, king of the amateurs, burden the top ranks every year.

Here is the table with names and the numbers of years they have placed in the first 10 finishers in American open tournaments since 1920:

Walter Hagen	8
Leo Diegel	7
Bill Mehlhorn	5
Johnny Farrell	5
Gene Sarazen	4
Mac Smith	3
Emmett French	3
Jock Hutchinson	3
Mike Brady	3
Jim Barnes	2
Robbie Cruickshank	2
Al Espinosa	2

There you have the names of the consistent winners in the big test of golf among the professionals. Is there anything startling about the fact that these men are the backbone of what many choose to call a "professional golf trust?"

STARS ENTER MOTOR RACES

Leading Motorcycle Racers of South in Meet at Lakewood.

If Atlanta's first motorcycle race meet of the season, to be held Saturday, continues to draw riders of the same type and reputation as those who entered last week, the opening event will be one of the most closely-contested and most thrilling seen here since the days of Nemo Lancaster and other old-timers.

Some of the best riders in this section of the country have filled out their entry blanks and returned them, and everything points to a successful meet.

Heading the list of early entries are the names of "Dusty" Dodd, "Pat" famous "Sunny Boy"; Whitley Roberts, "Rough-and-Ready" Roberts and Guy Hagood. All will bring fast motors here for the races. Others are expected before the entry list closes this week.

The meet, of six events, will officially open the annual season at Lakewood park sponsord by the Junior Butler, John Wells, who will ride his Chamber of Commerce. The program has been sanctioned by the Southern Racing Association, and everything is being done to present on opening day of the park the best program of races seen on the Lakewood track. One, three, five, seven and ten-mile races will be run, besides a novelty event.

The main gates to the park will be thrown open to the public, and only admission will be charged for the grandstand and midway concessions.

Match Postponed At Forest Hills

Rain Causes Forest Hills Golfers To Wait Week for Crack at Ansley.

By Dick Hawkins.

Having more intelligence than a lot of us who played golf Sunday despite the caprices of the weather man, the golf teams of Ansley Park and Forrest Hills declined to play their team match and postponed it for another week. Last week at Ansley the Forrest Hills outfit took a sound drubbing and were all set for a bit of juicy revenge but the weather man laid them a stymie.

As hinted above, however, there were a few saps with more of a yen for golf than judgment who skidded around the local courses Sunday. Being one of the saps it behooves me not to criticise too severely but I still think it's terrible.

Our foursome at East Lake was made up by Jack Star, big aluminum man; Wally Brunmark, merchandising prince; Steve Hartney, semi-professional golfer and contender for the heavyweight boxing title, and your correspondent. Thinking we were the only four persons afflicted with dementia golfcox our lot was a hard one until we passed another foursome just as a drenching shower came up over the lake. This match was made up of the two Robert Joneses, senior and junior; Tess Bradshaw and Big Bob Gardner. If a golfer who has played as much and as well as Robert Tyre doesn't know enough to come in out of the rain why should we? I ask you.

There were others, too, who plodded and puffed around behind and before us. In fact there are some who claim the rain is a great aid to good golf. If you happened to hear a noise a bit higher pitched but no softer than the thunder, that was Ed Jarvis immediately after he holed out his iron shot for an eagle 2 on the third hole. Ed never did have a voice like a head nurse and when a man holes out an iron shot for an eagle—well, you can't blame him.

* * * *

ANOTHER DODO.

Boldly emblazoned on the bulletin board at East Lake is the information that J. T. Jennings took one stroke to finish the sixth hole Saturday. The particulars are not there but the fact is the thing after all. One story is that Jennings' ball bit a rock on the edge of the canal and bounded onto the green and thence into the cup. The other story is that his shot was perfect, striking near the pin and rolling into the cup without ado. Whatever the means, a dodo is a dodo.

* * * *

NOTHING WRONG.

There is nothing on the tournament books for this week except the one-day flag tournament at Druid Hills next Saturday, but any or all of the other clubs may decide any day to hold a ball affair.

TASTE above everything

Millions of smokers say, "I'd rather have a Chesterfield"—for that one reason.

They know little about the millions of pounds of choice tobaccos put away to age... they know nothing of Chesterfield's CROSS-BLENDING method... but they do know how Chesterfields taste!

And rightly enough, taste is the one thing smokers want!

GENERAL MOTORS CAPITAL HUGEST

BY R. L. BARNUM.

New York, April 27.—United States Steel was the country's first $1,000,000,000 corporation. That was in 1901. Half of this capitalization was in preferred stock and half in common.

For many years United States Steel was the country's only billion-dollar corporation and for a much longer period it continued to head the list in amount of outstanding capitalization.

United States Steel common was still the leader of the stock market long after General Motors came into existence. General Motors was then far down the list in amount of outstanding capitalization.

Today, General Motors stands at the top of the list in amount of outstanding capitalization with United States Steel far down the list. United States Steel now stands fifteenth from the top.

Here is a list of the 23 largest corporations in amount of outstanding common stock alone:

	Shares Listed	Market Value
General Motors	43,500,000	$3,697,000,000
Stand. Oil of N. J.	24,775,000	1,486,000,000
American Telephone	17,000,000	731,500,000
Shell Union Oil	13,130,000	2,301,000,000
Stand Oil of Cal.	13,062,000	404,000,000
Internat. Nickel	13,016,000	1,028,000,000
Penn R. R.	11,788,000	565,000,000
Consolidated Gas	11,240,000	854,000,000
Du Pont	10,395,000	1,091,000,000
Texas Corporation	9,838,000	1,741,000,000
Kennecott Copper	9,346,000	616,000,000
Reynolds Tob. B	9,133,000	774,000,000
General Electric	9,000,000	515,000,000
U. S. Steel	7,211,000	1,730,000,000
Radio Corp.	7,116,000	1,309,000,000
S. S. Kresge	5,777,000	554,000,000
Sinclair	5,517,000	270,000,000
Nat. Pow. & Light	5,494,000	219,000,000
Unit. Cig. Stores	5,428,000	271,000,000
North American	5,376,000	112,000,000
Pub. Serv. of N. J.	5,265,000	531,000,000
Anaconda Copper	5,255,000	526,000,000
	5,140,000	719,000,000

These twenty-three companies have total outstanding common stock aggregating 252,882,000 shares. At the beginning of this week the total market value of these common shares was $22,569,000,000. By the middle of the week the price of many of the shares was higher, the total value of American Telephone & Telegraph common stock, for example, crossing for the first time the $3,000,000,000 mark.

Increased Amount.

In another few weeks there will be an increase in the total amount of outstanding common stock of these 23 companies. In connection with its bond retirement plans United States Steel will increase its outstanding common stock by 1,016,000 shares, going ahead of General Electric on the foregoing list. Anaconda will shortly increase its outstanding common stock to retire bonded debt. Other companies are expected to follow.

While the foregoing figures are interesting, it is even more striking to point out how the common stock alone of these companies has increased within the past few weeks. Take the Steel Corporation for example. Within the last couple of years the outstanding common stock of that company has increased from 5,080,000 shares to 7,116,000. General Motors only six years ago had 16,183,000 shares of common stock outstanding. The next year, 1924, the management decided that the amount of outstanding common stock was unwieldly and the number of shares was decreased to 4,984,000. These 4,984,000 shares of five years ago compare with the 43,500,000 shares now outstanding.

Started Split-Ups.

It was the Standard Oil companies that started the countrywide movement of declaring stock dividends and split-ups. This was in 1921. In the year last named, Standard Oil of New York, for instance, had 750,000 outstanding shares of common stock. The company now has 2,350,000 shares. The increase in some other companies is even more pronounced.

The increase in the amount of outstanding stock of our corporations has both its good and bad sides. While a very large percentage of the increase in capitalization of our corporations in recent years represents stock dividends and split-ups, that is stock given away, much of the increase represents stock sold to raise needed working capital for increased facilities and production, all of which has added to the unprecedented trade activity and prosperity of recent years.

Again, stock has been sold widely to employes as well as to the big outside public with the result better conditions between capital and labor than ever before existed in this country with far less agitation on the part of politicians seeking popular political issues.

Income Increased.

The other side of the picture is found in the increases that have taken place in net income of corporations in recent years compared with increases that have occurred in the market value of stocks on top of the greatly increased capitalization. For example last year General Motors increased its net income by $11,000,000 to $276,000,000. This was a remarkable increase in earnings. But the advance in the price of the stock during the same period was $61 a share, which, when applied to the increased amount of outstanding stock, amounted to the staggering sum of $1,890,000,000.

Nothing unfavorable has happened to stock marketwise as a result of these increases in capitalization of corporations because earnings have been increasing even if slower than the increase in the market value of outstanding stock. So far, the stock market has not had a test of sustained declining corporation earnings.

Moreover, the increased amount of outstanding stock of corporations, together with high stock prices, has formed a basis of credit and purchasing power which has caused some economists to ask if what we have is not inflation such as was witnessed in Germany after the war but in another form.

In his statement of a few days ago, suggesting that income tax payments on stock transactions be abandoned, President Mitchell of the National City bank, started with this: "That the condition of credit with which we have to deal is one of inflation can scarcely be denied."

HUNTER CO. REPORTS QUIET WEEK'S MARKET

Hunter Manufacturing and Commission Company, New York, says:

The market has been quiet during the week so that our total sales have been below production. There have been comparatively few price changes and no outstanding sales in any particular division. Inquiry on print cloths has been confined to small lots. This was not unexpected as the action of the cotton market was somewhat unsettling and also because of the large volume of business which was booked last week. Sheetings continue quiet, particularly on constructions used by the bag trade. Colored goods have also been relatively quiet but we have noted some improvement in the demand for flannels.

In studying and discussing the situation with some of our important trades we are encouraged over possibilities for increased volume from the raincoat and oilclothing industries. Going back to last fall, the weather was very much against this industry and large stocks were, therefore, carried over into this spring. However, with the recent generous rains, which were well distributed, stocks on hand have been materially reduced and as a result we are beginning to get more inquiry on special constructions used by this trade.

Our business with the tire manufacturers continues very satisfactory and recently they have placed orders for various special constructions for deliveries well into the summer months. On the other hand, there is some letup in the demand for constructions used by the automobile trade, and we have recently received requests for deferment of deliveries.

Gingham prices are being named for fall delivery and the largest producer maintains prices on the standard fancy lines for fall. We are hopeful that this will stimulate business with the jobbers, not alone on ginghams but on other lines used by them as well. In the last ten days or two weeks we have had a splendid business with the manufacturers on all lines of summer suitings, and many of the orders coming through are for prompt and near-by shipment. It looks as though we will have an active demand for these various constructions for the next four weeks. While all overall factories are not running full, we believe denims are passing straight through to the consumer in a satisfactory way. There is no doubt that the shirt manufacturers have had a large business and have been able to keep their plants running comparatively full, and this condition should reflect itself in the buying of chambrays and shirtings in the near future. Reviewing the garment manufacturing trade in general, we believe conditions are favorable, and manufacturers are in an optimistic frame of mind as to their expectation for business for this quarter.

The unusually cold and wet weather, particularly in this section of the country, during the month of April has retarded retail sales, but business was generally satisfactory for the first quarter, and retail merchants are hopeful of satisfactory business as soon as there is a period of more seasonable weather. There is considerable increase in the inquiry on household lines, such as sheets and pillow cases and towels, and our understanding is that these stocks are generally low. However, buyers anticipate a satisfactory business during May and June and are beginning to make purchases accordingly.

BRADSTREET'S WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings in the United States for the week ending April 25, as reported by telegraph to Bradstreet's Journal, aggregated $11,284,662,000, as against $12,567,776,000 week before last and $11,455,685,000 in last week last year. There is here shown a decrease of 10.2 per cent from week before last and of 1.4 per cent from the like week a year ago. Canadian clearings aggregated $328,211,000, against $343,209,000 week before last and $320,881,000 in last week last year. Following are the returns for last week with percentage of change shown:

Young Fibber.

Chicago, April 28.—(United News.)—Virginia Barret, 8, picked up her dolls, took her fox terrier and ran away from her Niles Center home when her foster father told her he would return Virginia to an orphanage because she told a fib. An officer found her today and she fibbed to him so he took Virginia, dolls and fox terrier back home.

The Business Barometer

BY THEO. H. PRICE

Editor, Commerce and Finance, New York.

One of the wisest of Wall Street's elder statesmen once told the writer that the surest sign of the culmination of a bull market in stocks was an advance in the English bank rate. The infirmity of the market during the nearly three months that have elapsed since that advance took place confirms his wisdom, and if he were alive today he would probably attach almost as much significance to the increases in the rates of the German reichsbank and the Polish, Hungarian and Austrian central banks that were announced last week.

For these advances serve notice that Europe will not allow her debts to force her off the gold standard again, and that she will maintain her money rates at the figure necessary to keep her gold at home. The corollary is that she will be compelled to do less business, and that our export trade must diminish at the same time that we are being deprived of the inflationary stimulus of the gold import movement that has lately been under way.

If the reparations conferees had been able to reach an agreement the European crisis might have been postponed and its severity mitigated, but the fact may as well be faced that the absorption of the world's supply of lendable credit has produced a stringency which must eventually compel liquidation of securities and perhaps of merchandise also.

Speculative Hesitation.

Thus "speculative hesitation" is the best description of the conditions that now prevail on the New York Stock Exchange, and the other security markets which dance to the music of the ticker that records the fluctuations on the big board.

When money is to be had buyers are cautious, and when it is scarce sellers are courageous.

An occasional burst of strength in some of the speculative favorites is to be noticed from time to time, but those who are in the market seem disinclined to buy more, and those who out of it show but little disposition to re-enter the speculative arena.

There are other reasons for this than the advance in the foreign bank rates. One is the verbal restraint that the reserve board continues to exercise over loans on securities.

Another is the prospect that it will take a long time for congress to agree upon a program of farm relief that will be acceptable to President Hoover.

These influences are also commencing to exercise a restraining effect upon trade, and most of the economic bureaus that centure into the field of prophecy are predicting a slight contraction of commercial activity.

Cannot Expand.

Even the most confirmed optimists agree that business cannot expand indefinitely, and the best judges of the situation admit that a reaction is overdue.

There is nothing to indicate that this contraction will be acute or unhealthy for the stocks of merchandise in the hands of American distributors are small, and production is so well under control that it can easily be kept within the limitations of the prospective demand. But it is plain that we are approaching a period of readjustment, and that while it lasts dealers will be indisposed to anticipate their prospective requirements.

Most of the commodity markets seem to have taken heed of the quieter mood that prevails in the stock market, and a decline has been recorded wherever there was anything to justify it.

Cotton has been quite weak; consumers have been buying at below 19c for July contracts, but it is undeniable that private advices indicate that the crop is doing well, and that the acreage may be larger than any of the formal reports thus far published show. The grain markets have also shown a drooping tendency, and there has been little recovery from the recent drop in rubber, copper and sugar.

Is Dominating Factor.

In so far as the speculative situation in its entirety is concerned, the money market continues to be the dominating factor, and it seems futile to hope for any revival of enthusiasm until there has been a more substantial reduction in brokers' loans.

The attention of the entire country has been so successfully focused upon the credit distention caused by the stock boom, that its psychological influence may perhaps outweigh its technical importance, and it seems idle to hope that securities can be put much higher until the present congestion has been relieved by a partial distribution of the stocks and bonds hypothecated as security for the money that stock brokers are borrowing.

Meantime the bond market is commencing to reflect the tightness of money. At present prices the obligations of the United States government now outstanding are worth about $500,000,000 less than they were when call money ruled at from 4 to 5 per cent and the city of New York has been compelled to announce that it would pay 5 1-4 per cent on $52,000,000 of subway bonds for which it is now inviting bids.

As the higher rates thus established will tend to restrict municipal borrowing, and delay the completion of many public improvements that have been planned, it is not surprising that building has been reduced, although lately some signs of acceleration have appeared.

New Business Short.

In iron and steel it is admitted that new business is now considerably below production and that curtailment will soon be resorted to, although at present the mills are still straining to meet demands for prompt shipment. In the automobile industry reduction of output is likely to begin during May. The cotton textile industry is still extremely active except where labor troubles interfere, but it will not be long before it must have more new orders to keep going at its present rate.

Of course a decline in industrial production during the late spring and summer is always expected and it should cause no alarm this year even if something more than the seasonal recession occurs. Within limits it will be salutary, and nothing could more effectively bring about the reduction in security loans which must precede credit relief.

Nashville Husband Accords Wife Funeral of Vikings

CREMATES BODY AT HONEYMOON SITE

Nashville, Tenn., April 28.—(AP)—The story of a promise fulfilled was told here today by John H. Nichols, Jr., prominent Nashville fire insurance adjuster, to verify reports that he cremated the body of his wife at the woodland scene of their honeymoon. Twenty-five years ago Nichols, son of a well-known Methodist minister, wooed and won Martha McDougal of Mississippi. He took her to the foothills of the Cumberlands for a honeymoon. Near a waterfall in Putnam county where the mountain pines troop down to the creek to drink, they spent the first weeks of their married life.

"She loved the waterfall and the hills and the flowers so much," Nichols said.

Several months ago she became ill, and, believing she would die, asked her husband to take her body back to the foothills and burn it.

"She asked me to do it," the husband said, "——— and I did."

"There is nothing unusual about it," he continued. "The Greeks and Romans burned the bodies of their loved ones. The Vikings did the same. I could not give her a Vikings funeral, but I could fulfill her wish."

Mrs. Nichols died April 8, and Nichols said he left Nashville with the body.

"I let it be known that I was taking her to Cincinnati to a crematory because members of her family preferred that the rites in the woodland spot be kept quiet," he said. "They did not disapprove."

He took the body to near Boma, built a pyre of logs, saturated the wood with kerosene, placed the body on the pyre and lighted it. One other person was with him during the strange ceremony.

"I scattered wild flowers about," he said, "because she loved them. I see nothing odd about it, although it appears unusual to some. It was at midday, noon, when I placed her on the fire. I did not approve of the modern methods of cremation. That was the way she wished it, and I did as she wished. We often camped near the spot in the summer time. She loved it so."

At Cookeville, near Boma, the ceremonies of the bereaved husband has been whispered and talked about for nearly two weeks as the story spread. Feeling was somewhat intense, but Mr. Nichols said it was his affair.

"I carried out her wishes," he said.

Kickless Alky Is Latest Boon To Human Race

Columbus, Ohio, April 28.—(AP)—An alcohol without any exhilirating "kick," produced as an incident in the development of a new chemical industry, was described here today on the eve of the 77th annual convention of the American Chemical Society.

Professor James F. Norris, former president of the society and director of the chemical research laboratory of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, told of the industry and incidentally of the new alcoholic substance.

This alcohol, entirely different from the brands that man has known well for some many thousands of years, is a product of petroleum.

Chemists, said Mr. Norris, already have produced the alcohol under the name of isopropyl. They are now studying it actively to extend its applications, especially to find out whether it can be substituted for grain or ethyl alcohol.

"It is a substance unlike other alcohols," said Dr. Norris, "its physiological effect on human beings is different. It produces no exhiliration, but has a deadening effect.

If it can be developed sufficiently it may enable us to get away from that now large section of bootlegging that lives by rectifying denatured alcohols. For not only are bootleggers cow.

ignorant of any way to rectify this substance, but if they did it would fail to have the desired effects in a beverage. . . ."

FIRST HIPPO SEEN IN UNITED STATES DIES AT AGE OF 75

New York, April 28.—(United News.)—Mrs. Murphy, dowager hippopotamus of the United States, is dead at the Central Park zoo.

She was 75 years old—the first hippo to be brought to this country—and her demise is thought to have been due to old age.

"The old lady has been feeble and ailing all winter," said Keeper Harry Kinney. "We were prepared for some such bad eventuality. Her teeth were all worn down and her hay had to be chopped for her. But she kept her appetite to the last. Only yesterday she ate 60 pounds of chopped hay, 30 quarts of mash made of bran, rolled oats, three or four vegetables and several loaves of bread. Then she drank about half her tank."

Mrs. Murphy is survived by her only son, Caliph 11, who occupies an adjoining cage.

Berlin May Day.

Berlin, April 28.—(United News.) Police arrested 49 persons last night after communist demonstrations demanding freedom to hold May Day parades. Authorities and newspapers, except communist organs, declared this morning against open air May Day meetings, declaring the communist organizers were acting on orders from the third internationale at Moscow.

STATE OPTOMETRISTS RE-ELECT DR. BENTON

Two-Day Convention To Close With Banquet Monday Night.

Dr. C. D. Benton, of Atlanta, was re-elected president of the Georgia State Association of Optometrists at the 25th annual convention, at the Henry Grady hotel Sunday afternoon. The election of officers was the only feature of the opening session.

Other officers elected are: Dr. H. J. Godin, of Augusta, vice president and F. C. Wilson, of Valdosta, secretary and treasurer. It will be the fourth term for Secretary Wilson.

Members of the executive committee are: Dr. C. H. Kittrell, of Dublin, chairman; Dr. W. R. Wilson, of Douglas; Dr. J. J. Hogue, of Albany; Dr. F. C. Clason, of Columbus, and Dr. J. H. Spratling, of Macon.

After one of the most spirited discussions in the history of the association in which talks were made for six different cities, the Columbus delegation won out and the 1930 convention will be held in that city on the second Monday in June. Other cities which bid for the 1930 convention were Augusta, Macon, Douglas, Dublin and Millen.

An educational program will feature today, after which the annual banquet will be given tonight in the main dining room of the Henry Grady hotel, where all of the sessions will be held. The banquet will officially end the two-day convention.

Included in the educational program will be an address of welcome by Dr. Benton, the president, followed by Dr. Ralph Byrnes' talk on "Focal Infections in Relation to the Eyes." Dr. Byrnes is an author, lecturer and executive dean of the Atlanta Southern Dental college. R. O. Perkins, will talk on "Legislative Action on the Proposed Change of the Optometry Law," as the closing talk on the morning program.

During the afternoon session, Professor H. W. Martin, professor of psychology at Emory university will speak on "Some Psychologic Views in the Optometric Field." Dr. Elzie Thomas will talk on "Female Disorders and Their Relation to the Eyes," and Dr. C. D. Benton will end the session with stereopticon illustrations of the diseases of the eye.

A business session for the ladies' auxiliary will be held at 10 o'clock, followed by a bridge-luncheon from 12 to 1:30 o'clock. A theater party will be given in the afternoon and the day will be ended with the annual banquet.

OUGHT TO BE A LAW FOR DRY SHIPS, CANNON

Washington, April 28—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, explained today why he chose to come home from England on the Olympic, a "wet" ship.

Answering a radio query sent him aboard the steamer last Tuesday by Representative Laguardia, republican, New York, the churchman made public his reply in which he declared that "other matters besides 'wet' and 'dry' enter into the choice of the ship on which one sails."

"Speed, safety, date of sailing, port of landiag, cost, needed and available accommodations, companions — all these," the bishop said, "are matters to be considered. All things being equal, certainly I should select a 'dry' ship, but I leave others to determine for themselves which ship will best meet their needs and best enable them to accomplish their purposes."

He added that he could not "believe that any considerable number of travelers are such slaves to the appetite for intoxicants as to subordinate other matters of importance to the item of whether the ship on which one lives for six or eight days is 'wet' or 'dry.'"

Referring to sale of liquor aboard American-owned ships, the bishop declared that the "law of the country should follow the flag of the country. "If the owners of vessels or of any other property," he said, "claim the protection of the American flag—that is, of the government—they are, I think, under a moral obligation to accept and obey the laws of that government. It is bad sportsmanship, and, indeed, cowardly to take advantage of the fact that there is no written statute to compel them to play the game fairly. Personally, if such cowardly, contemptible methods are adopted, I should favor the passage of a law to put an end to such a situation and to make the law follow the flag."

ARTISTS JOIN FIGHT ON PROHIBITION.

Washington, April 28.—(AP)—Formation of an authors' and artists' committee of 210 writers, cartoonists and illustrators to co-operate in its effort to obtain repeal or modification of the prohibition law was announced day by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Invitations to join the new committee are being sent to more than 1,000 others.

Among the more prominent names, the association listed the following as members:

Samuel Hopkins Adams, George Ade, Zoe Atkins, William Beebe, Irving S. Cobb, Vina Delmar, F. Scott Fitzgerald, James Montgomery Flagg, Rupert Hughes, Sinclair Lewis, Anita Loos, Christopher Morley and Max-field Parrish, Clare A. Briggs and Percy F. Crosby, James Branch Cabell and Edgar Lee Masters.

TENNESSEE OFFICER KILLS RUM RUNNER.

Gallatin, Tenn., April 28.—(AP)—Ollie Hix, 30, was fatally wounded this afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Will Chenault, who sought to arrest him, as Hix was allegedly bringing a cargo of liquor into town in his automobile. Chenault claims that he fired at the tires of the car only, intending to force Hix to halt, and that his bullet went astray. Chenault was arrested on charges preferred by Hix's father and released under $10,000 bond.

YOUTH SUCCUMBS TO DRY BULLETS.

Clarksville, Tenn., April 28.—(AP)—Douglas A. Pearson, 23, wounded last Sunday by Tyler Abernathy, 24, deputy sheriff under his father, Sheriff George S. Abernathy, during a liquor raid by county oficers, died today. Young Abernathy, charged with first degree murder following Pearson's death, posted $5,000 bond for his release.

Bombay Mill Strike.

Bombay, India, April 28.—(United News.)—Government officials who went to Mahableshar last week are expected to return here immediately to deal with the Bombay mill strike, which made 120,000 workers idle. Police have taken special precautions to prevent disorder in the milling district.

11,000,000 Bibles Are Distributed During Past Year

A report of the American Bible Society that a million more Bibles were distributed throughout the world during the past year than in any previous year, will be made by the permanent committee on Bible cause for the Presbyterian church, United States, at the general assembly of the church at Montreat, N. C., May 16-23, it was announced here Sunday.

More than 11,000,000 Bibles were put into circulation the past year, with over 4,500,000 going to China and an appreciably greater demand noted from Latin-American countries, the report said.

Last year the Bible was translated for an Eskimo tribe in Alaska, bringing the total tongues into which the Book has been made intelligible to 853, with an actual circulation in 182 different languages, among which are included an Indian tribe in Arizona, natives in Bolivia, Indians in Central America, a tribe in the White Nile and another in West Africa.

The report, which will be submitted by Dr. W. L. Lingle, Richmond, Va., chairman, stated that for 95 years the American Bible Society has been publishing the Bible for the blind in the Braille and other systems and that 75,000 copies have been issued to the blind the past year. Increased production has decreased the price for the sightless of 21 volumes, the report indicated.

December 8 was recommended in the report for Universal Bible Sunday.

In addition to Dr. Lingle, other members of the committee which signed the report are J. A. McLean, W. S. Rhoads and D. K. Kellogg, all of Richmond; W. J. McMillan, Norfolk, Va., and E. B. McCluer, Lynchburg, Virginia.

A WELL-KNOWN corporation has entered a new field of selling in which it has developed and has on its roster salesmen who are outstanding specimens of what a modernly devised plan of sales will accomplish.
WE have no $25,000 jobs for salesmen, but we do have average men earning $11,000 and over.
THE man we want does not usually answer ads, yet his ambition is beyond his present place, both as to remuneration and promotion.
TO some men this will mean $200 per week and better, to others financial independence and as for some, it will go right over their heads.
A FIVE-Passenger car is essential.
A WISE man will see Mr. Wynn, room 338, Cecil hotel.

NEW ALL-TALKIE POLICY TO START AT HOWARD

Move Is Part of Nation-wide Change in Publix Theaters.

First program at the Howard theater under the nation-wide chain of Publix theaters stage show presentation policy to an all-talking picture bill, will be presented today with "Close Harmony," a Paramount pictutre and a Clark and McCullough three-reel comedy subject.

Relative to the new policy, the following announcement is made by Robert E. Hicks, manager:

"With Broadway completely captured by the stupendous new talking films, which, in the opinion of audiences and critics, have equalled and bettered legitimate productions, the film industry has been re-born.

"No longer are moving pictures being produced in the old sense of the word. These new productions are plays, revues and musical comedies, enacted by Broadway's favorites and brought to every city of consequence in the country through the modern miracle of sound.

"An outstanding film has been selected to inaugurate the new policy, if eastern critics are to be believed. It is the screen-stage's first successful musical comedy in film, "Close Harmony," a Paramount producting starring Charles Rogers and Nancy Carroll.

"Other major attractions now in production and which will be shown in the near future include Mary Pickford in "Coquette"; John Boles in "Desert Song"; Walter Huston in "Gentlemen of the Press"; Maurice Chevalier in "Innocents of Paris"; Moran and Mack in "Two Black Crows," and the four Marx brothers in "Cocoanuts."

Atlanta.

Youth deeply in love and determined to overcome all hazards and find happiness in spite of interference from relatives makes "Tommy," the new offering of the Fulenwider all-star players at the Atlanta theater, one of the most charming and refreshing plays of the season. Ted Osborn, the popular juvenile of the company, will be seen in the title role and from the opening curtain tonight at 8:30 he is expected to start increasing his circle of admirers. The role is one of rapid changes and persuasive comedy, such as has already endeared Osborn to Atlanta theater-goers.

Keith's Georgia.

Keith's Georgia lines up along theater-row this week with the only vaudeville show in Atlanta. It's "Appreciation Week" at the Georgia. The famous Weaver Brothers and "Elviry," known as the "Arkansas Travelers" who fill the headline position on this five-act bill will keep you in convulsions with their line of patter and the music they coax out of instruments. The picture portion of this show stacks up nicely with Paramount's all-talking mystery drama, "The Hole in the Wall" with a cast of stage favorites.

Loew's Capitol.

Simultaneous with its presentation on Broadway, "Show Boat," the elaborate sound filmization of Edna Ferber's famous novel, is being shown this week at Loew's Capitol. This latest achievement by Universal presents a cast that includes Laura LaPlante, Helen Morgan, Jules Bledsoe, Joseph Schildkraut and various other celebrities of the screen and the musical comedy stage. Many of the song hits of Ziegfeld's successful stage production of the same name are heard in the screen version of "Show Boat," which brings back the days of an era 25 years or more ago along the Mississippi river.

Howard.

The Howard offers this week Paramount's two most popular young stars, Nancy Carroll and Charles "Buddy" Rogers in "Close Harmony," an all-talking and singing comedy romance. For the first time the many admirers of Buddy Rogers will hear him play five musical instruments, as well as introduce a popular song, "I'm All-a-Twitter." Also on the screen will be seen Clark and McCullough in "Waltzing Around."

Metropolitan.

One of the first and easily one of the greatest of the musical shows to come into existence since the birth of talking pictures, "Syncopation" opens an engagement today at the Metropolitan. "Syncopation" has all the attributes of a huge musical show and more. In its cast are more stars than ever appeared in a single musical show. Morton Downey, Broadway's own golden voiced sensation; Barbara Bennett, graceful dancer, and another sensation of the great white way, Bobby Osgood, and last, but by no means least, is that musical aggregation known throughout the world as Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians.

Cameo.

The thrilling story of a haunted theater, a murder and strange happenings is unfolded in "The Last Warning," starring Laura La Plante, which is showing today and Tuesday at the Cameo. It is from the stage play by Thomas F. Fallon, and was directed by Paul Leni.

Loew's Grand.

Warner Baxter, Dorothy Burgess and Edmund Lowe are the stars of "In Old Arizona," the talking picture that opens today at Loew's Grand for a three-day run. It is a story of the frontier days of the southwest, with the "Cisco Kid," a clever bandit, proving a most elusive fugitive from the minions of the law sent to capture him.

Alamo No. 2.

"Sinners in Love," the FBO special which appears today at the Alamo No. 2 theater, is an original story by an anonymous author. It was awarded first prize in a contest conducted by True Story magazine and FBO, and incidentally is one of the greatest tie-ups ever consummated between a magazine and a motion picture producing and distributing organization.

Ponce de Leon.

The exciting and humorous story of the after-theater life of a chorus girl is the entertaining theme of Universal's feature comedy, "Phyllis of the Follies," starring Alice Day and Matt Moore, which will be screened at the Ponce de Leon theater today. The others in the cast as Edmund Burns, Lilyan Tashman and Duane Thompshon. Manager Davis announces "He Who Laughs" for Tuesday and Wednesday.

Empire.

"Wolf of Wall Street," the sensational Paramount all-talking picture starring the noted George Bancroft and exotic Baclanova, will open for a two-day run today at the Empire theater, corner Georgia avenue and Crew street. The all-talking picture tells the thrilling story of a man to whom Wall Street and the love of conquest is greater even than filial ties.

FEDERALS APPROACH REBEL STRONGHOLD

Mexico City, April 28.—(AP)—Encouraging reports from the various field generals discounting the possibility of another engagement of any magnitude was received by the Mexican government today, which ushered in the ninth week of civil warfare.

General J. A. Almazan with an army of 10,000 soldiers was reported moving cautiously through El Pulpito Canyon toward Sonora where virtually all the rebels are making a last stand. This region is infested with rebels who have constantly harassed the federal troops, thus delaying their progress. General P. Elias Calles set up the southern Sonora division headquarters at Navajoa and ordered his troops to take a rest to recuperate from the strenuous marches of last week and to prepare for the expected hard week of campaigning ahead.

Rebels in southern Sonora were reported at Cuidad Obregon, where yesterday several federal aviators bombed their ranks. Federal cavalry forces were proceeding toward Cuidad Obregon, which is 60 kilometers from Navajoa and the possibility of an early skirmish at that place if the rebels do not withdraw developed. That the revolting forces were clearing out, however, was indicated yesterday when several rebel trains passed through Empalme and were subjected to a bombardment from federal cruisers in Gayamas bay.

President Emilio Portes Gil returned to the capital late last night from Cuernavaca, whe he spent a day with his family in relaxation. At Chapultepec castle the r.sident went over the latest repor's from the various field generals. They were of a most encouraging nature and reported the rebels on the run everywhere in Sonora except in El Pulpito canyon.

HALF-INCH RAIN IN FIVE MINUTES FALLS ON COAST

Savannah, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—Half an inch of rain fell here tonight in about five minutes, starting shortly after 7:30 o'clock. The rain slackened after the first deluge, but at the end of an hour seven-tenths of an inch had fallen. Light craft warnings were hoisted here today and the wind reached a velocity of 30 miles an hour. It has died down tonight. The maximum temperature was 86 degrees at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The weather turned perceptibly cooler just prior to the rain.

KING'S RECOVERY THANK OFFERING STARTS IN LONDON

London, April 28.—(United News.)—An anonymous donor who called himself "Audax" in a letter to the king's private secretary offered 105,000 pounds sterling (about $525,000) as a nucleus for a national thanks offering fund in connection with the recovery of his majesty after his long illness.

The fund would go to the King Edward hospital.

The king agreed to the offer and the fund has been opened to public subscription, it was announced tonight.

100 Per Cent Pure.

Hickory Flats, Miss., April 28.—(United News.)—Even the scent of whisky on one's breath is made a felony under an ordinance passed by the board of aldermen of Hickory Flats. An other ordinance makes swearing on the streets a punishable defense.

MECHANICAL BRAIN LATEST INVENTION

New Machine Does Away Entirely With Accounting Department.

New York, April 28.—(AP)—A mechanical device, known as the "Business Brain," which will simultaneously do the work of a cash register, bookkeeping and adding machines and, from another part of the building, make a complete record of a sale at the time it is made, is about to make its bow in American industry.

Formation was announced today by an investment banking group, headed by Mendes, Bell & Whitney, Inc., of the Hofgaard-Remington Corporation, to own and control the machine and its system, which are covered by world-wide patents. Remington Arms Company owns a substantial interest in the new corporation and will manufacture the machines at Bridgeport, Connecticut.

The machine is the invention of a young Norwegian, Rolf Hofgaard, whose father, superintendent of an institution for the deaf, dumb and blind in Norway, devised a system of instruction by touch alone which was studied by Helen Keller. Hofgaard will have a substantial interest in the new company.

Cuts Employment Nine-Tenths.

Experts say the Hofgaard machine functions with absolute accuracy. As the operator writes out the invoice of a safe, for instance, the machine—through its central "brains," which may be locted in some other part of the building—will calculate and record the prices, which are simultaneously added, figure the discounts desired, recording in proper classification the discounts and net totals, multiply the pounds and fractions in weights by a fraction in price, and parts of the calculation, and, at the end, give the grand total of the various sub-totals of the columns. In addition to adding and multiplying, it will perform direct division and subtraction.

When the machine is installed in a bank it will be able to do the work of nearly nine-tenths of the employes, according to the inventor. He cites as an example the instance of a bank which estimated that it would accomplish its accounting and auditing with 8 employes instead of the 67 now required.

RELIGIOUS RIOTS COST TWO LIVES IN BOMBAY, INDIA

Bombay, India, April 28.—(United News.)—Two persons were killed and 16 injured last night in a fresh outbreak of rioting between Hindu and Moslem religious factions.

Mohammedans were stoned when trapped before a Mosque and only the arrival of a strong force of police caused the rioters to disperse.

The Hindus later renewed the fighting with an attack on a Mohammedan funeral procession. Intermittent fighting in the streets continued throughout the night.

A t ense atmosphere spread throughout the city tonight. Police guards were strengthened to prevent further disturbances. The last outbreak of religious rioting here several months ago cost a large number of lives and lasted for days.

The grand dragon said that he had attended a number of klan meetings on his tour of the state. There will be none in Savannah during his visit here, but there will be one held in Augusta upon his arrival there.

GIRL SHOOTS SELF AND YOUNG LOVER IN MEMPHIS HOTEL

Memphis, April 28.—(AP)—Miss Stella Baucum, 26, had just one explanation for shooting and seriously wounding herself after she had wounded Paul James, 23, in a hotel here this afternoon.

Detectives who questioned her at a hospital where she was being treated for a bullet wound in her left breast, asked her: "why" and she answered: "Were you ever in love?"

"I'm not talking too much," she said in refusing other answers. Doctors said her condition was critical. James, although less seriously wounded, was under treatment at the same hospital.
